WAR DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, D. C., April 28—3 P. M.

Maj.-Gen. Dix:

A dispatch from Gen. GRANT, dated at Raleigh, 10 P. M., April 26, just received by this department, states that "JOHNSTON surrendered the forces in his command, embracing all from here to the Chattahoochee, to Gen. SHERMAN, on the basis agreed upon between LEE and myself for the Army of Northern Virginia."

EDWIN M. STANTON,
Secretary of War.

DISPATCH TO THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

FORTRESS MONROE, Thursday, April 27, via BALTIMORE, Friday, April 28.

A steamer arrived here this morning, from Morehead City, bringing advices from Newbern, that Gen. GRANT has effectually put an end to the armistice agreed upon between Gen. SHERMAN and Gen. JOHNSTON.

Gen. GRANT had given Gen. JOHNSTON up to 6 o'clock yesterday (Wednesday) morning to surrender his army. The conditions are unknown.

Gen. GRANT announced that after that hour hostilities would at once be resumed.

To this Gen. JOHNSTON is said to have replied that if JEFFERSON DAVIS and the leading general officers of the Confederacy were pardoned, and permission given them to leave the country, he would be authorized to accept the terms proposed.

The Terms of Johnston's Surrender.

As the terms of surrender accorded to the rebel Gen. JOHNSTON are the same as those dictated to Gen. LEE, we refresh the reader's recollection by a republication of Gen. GRANT's note of the 9th inst.:

APPOMATTOX COURT-HOUSE, April 9.

Gen. R. E. Lee:

In accordance with the substance of my letter to you, of the 8th inst., I propose to receive the surrender of the Army of Northern Virginia on the following terms, to wit: Rolls of all the officers and men to be made in duplicate; one copy to be given to any officer designated by me, the other to be retained by such officers as you may designate. The officers to give their undivided paroles not to take up arms against the Government of the United States until properly exchanged, and each company or regiment commander sign a like parole for the men of their commands; the arms, artillery and public property to be packed, stacked and turned over to the officers appointed by me to receive them. This will not embrace the side arms of the officers, nor their private horses or baggage. This done, each officer and man will be allowed to return to their homes, not to be disturbed by the United States authorities so long as they observe their parole and the laws in force where they may reside. Yours, respectfully,

U. S. GRANT,
Lieutenant-General.

BOOTH'S FATE.

PARTICULARS OF HIS CAPTURE AND DEATH.

Account of his Last Moments—His Sufferings and His Last Words.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Friday, April 28.

An unusual interest is manifested in hearing the details of the scenes and incidents in the capture and death of BOOTH, and especially in the circumstances from the time Col. BAKER's assistants approached the house of GARRETT, until the closing scene which ended with the death of the assassin. As yet these details have not been published in connected order, but after considerable trouble and labor, I have obtained from Lieut. L. B. BAKER a minute and exact statement of all the circumstances, from the time he and Col. CONGER, with a detachment of cavalry under command of Lieut. DOHERTY, approached the dwelling of GARRETT until they left the same with the dead body of BOOTH in charge. The other parties agree with Lieut. BAKER in the facts here stated, but inasmuch as the latter was present and with BOOTH continuously from the time he was shot until he died, and saw and heard everything that was done or said during that period, his statement is deemed the best authority. Besides this, it should be known that Lieut. BAKER is a gentleman of intelligence and a very close observer.

The party having arrived in the vicinity of GARRETT's house, moved cautiously up and surrounded it. The old man, GARRETT, came out of the kitchen door and asked, "What's this?" He was directed to light a candle, and he would be told; he went in to obey the order, and, in the meantime, Col. CONGER stationed a small guard near the barn. BAKER went into the house, and the old man soon joined him with a candle. BAKER caught him by the shoulder, holding a pistol near his head, saying, "I want to know where these two men are that were here this afternoon." The old man said he didn't know. BAKER said, "They are here, and if you don't bring them, I'll blow your brains out." The old man said they had gone to the woods in the afternoon when the cavalry passed (meaning BAKER's party.) BAKER again threatened to take GARRETT's life. At this moment CONGER returned. At the same instant GARRETT's son, who appeared to have been listening outside, entered the room, dressed in Confederate uniform. The son said, "Father, we had better tell them all." CONGER presented a pistol to young GARRETT's head and threatened to shoot him if he did not speak the truth. Young GARRETT then offered to conduct the parties to the barn where he said they were concealed. As they approached the barn they met another son of GARRETT's, also dressed in Confederate uniform. The whole cavalry force had now surrounded the barn. BAKER told young GARRETT he must go in and bring out the arms of those men, and deliver them over. He hesitated, but finally said he would do it. He took the keys and unlocked the door. The barn was an old-fashioned building, thirty by forty feet, nearly empty; had in it some straw, hay, and farming utensils. GARRETT went in and soon returned, saying they refused to give up their arms, and had threatened to shoot him, and he had therefore come out. He locked the door and gave the keys to BAKER. CONGER, BAKER and DOHERTY held conference, and concluded to make BOOTH and HARROLD do one of two things, either put their arms in the hands of GARRETT (in whose custody they were found) and surrender, or they would fire the barn and the thing would end in bonfire and shooting match.

BAKER was to make these propositions. BAKER went up and addressed the parties in the barn, stating what he had concluded to do, telling them we had come to take them prisoners, and would treat them as prisoners, and would give them five minutes to consider. A voice from the inside, which afterward was found to be BOOTH, "Who are you, and what do you want of me?"

BAKER—We want you, and intend to take you.

BOOTH—This is a hard case, it may be that I am to be taken by my friends.

After some further conversation, he seemed to be convinced that he was surrounded, and said:

"Give me a chance for my life. I am a cripple, with but one leg. Withdraw your men one hundred yards, and I'll come out and fight you."

BAKER—We did not come to fight you, but to take you prisoner. You must give up your arms and surrender.

BOOTH asked time to consider, which was granted. A low conversation was heard going on between BOOTH and his companion. We could distinguish BOOTH's voice saying, "Go away from me, you d—d coward; leave me now, will you, you d—d coward."

While this was going on, the cavalry were dismounted and the horses taken out of reach of the contemplated firing.

BOOTH then called out, "Captain, who are you? I could have picked off half a dozen of your men while we were talking, and could have had a half dozen good shots at you."

BAKER—Then give up your arms and surrender. We have come here to take you, not to fight you.

BOOTH—I will never surrender. I shall never be taken alive.

BAKER—If you don't immediately surrender we will immediately set fire to the barn.

BOOTH—Well, my brave boys, prepare a stretcher for me.

A short pause ensued and further low-toned conversation was had inside of the barn. BOOTH directly said: "There is a man here that wants to surrender."

BAKER "Then let him hand out his arms and come out.

Another conversation took place inside, in which HARROLD seemed to be trying to get his arms from BOOTH, who was heard to say: "Go away from me; I don't want anything to do with you."

HARROLD then came to the door and asked to be let out.

BAKER went to the door and told him "No; hand out your arms."

HARROLD replied, "I have no arms."

BAKER said, "You have. You brought a carbine in the ferry-boat. Hand out the carbine and one pistol and you can come out."

BOOTH.—He has no arms. They are all mine. Upon my word as a gentleman he has no arms. They all belong to me.

BAKER opened the door a short distance, and HARROLD put out both hands. BAKER took hold of them, brought HARROLD out, and handed him over to DOHERTY, and immediately shut the door and locked it.

Col. CONGER went to the side of the barn, and drawing a small wisp of hay from the crack, set it on fire and thrust it back, and immediately the hay and straw inside caught and lighted up the barn as light as day.

The first seen of BOOTH he was standing near the middle of the barn, leaning on his crutch, with carbine in hand. On seeing the fire he immediately made toward it, dropping his crutch, with the apparent intention of extinguishing the fire or shooting the person who lighted it. When he came near the fire, he hesitated, turned partly around, and his face was seen distinctly by Col. CONGER, who says BOOTH's face was then the picture of despair. He then made toward the main door of the barn with his carbine in one hand and his pistol in the other, and when about the centre of the barn a pistol shot was heard from near the corner of the building.

During this time BAKER was holding the door partially open. Hearing the shot, he opened the door and went in just in time to see BOOTH fall. CONGER, who immediately entered the barn, said, "He has shot himself." BAKER reached the body and clasped BOOTH by the arms, thinking he was probably only wounded, but finding him powerless, with the aid of CONGER, DOHERTY, and two soldiers, he was carried out of the barn and laid upon the grass a short distance from the door. He appeared to be insensible, but by applications of water, and bathing his face and head, he revived, opened his eyes, and made an effort to speak. Col. CONGER placed his ear to BOOTH's mouth, and heard him say, "Tell mother I die for my country."

The heat became so intense that BOOTH was taken to the porch of GARRETT's house. Col. CONGER immediately sent to Port Royal for a surgeon. An hour elapsed before the surgeon arrived, during which time Lieut. BAKER constantly bathed BOOTH's head in ice-water, and placed in his mouth a wet cloth, BOOTH being unable to get his lips to a tumbler, owing to the fact that he could not be raised up.

In the meantime it was discovered that the wound was inflicted by a shot from a pistol in the hands of Sergeant CORBETT, of the Sixteenth New-York Cavalry, the ball passing entirely through his neck, perforating both sides of his shirt collar.

Shortly after BOOTH was laid upon the porch he made an effort to speak. He said, "Tell my mother I died for my country. I did what I thought was for the best." This was said with great difficulty and apparently in the greatest pain. He said two or three times at intervals, "Kill me; kill me;" and by signs indicated that he wanted to cough, and that he wanted CONGER to put his hand on his throat. CONGER did so, but BOOTH did not succeed in coughing.

He seemed now to be failing rapidly, but revived again and said, "My hands." His hands were lying motionless by his side. BAKER raised one of his hands so that BOOTH could see it, and bathed it in ice-water. BOOTH, with great effort, his eyes glaring at the hand, said, "Useless, useless." BAKER let go his hand, which fell powerless by the dying man's side. Again BOOTH sank away, and was fast failing when the surgeon arrived. He examined the wound for some minutes and said BOOTH might live for twenty-four hours; but BOOTH's countenance soon changed, his eyes assuming a glassy appearance. The surgeon then said he thought he was dying.

About this time Col. CONGER left for Washington, with orders to bring the body, when death ensued, to the boat at Belle Plain. BOOTH seemed now to be in the agonies of death; his face was terribly distorted, his chin drawn down and to one side, his countenance turned bluish, and he seemed to be in the greatest agony. It was soon over, and the surgeon pronounced him dead. He received the death-wound at 3:15, and died at 7:20 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Besides Lieuts. BAKER and DOHERTY, and the soldiers, there were present at the death-scene four or five ladies of the GARRETT family, and old GARRETT and his two sons.

After the Surgeon had pronounced BOOTH dead, Lieut. BAKER took his blanket from his saddle, and in it rolled the body, sewing the blanket up about the feet and head. Previous to this, the Surgeon had tied up the dead man's chin and hands, and closed his eyes. The body was placed on a rickety one-horse buggy wagon, belonging to a free negro near by, and taken thirty miles over the country, to Belle Plain, where the boat Ida was in readiness to bring the party to this city.

SECOND DISPATCH.

There is scarcely any abatement to-day in the excitement about the BOOTH capture, and the greatest curiosity exists as to the disposition of the body, all sorts of rumors are afloat, by some it is stated, as upon the best authority, that the family of BOOTH have made a request to be permitted to take the body and deliver it to BOOTH's mother, and that the authorities have consented.

The presence in this city of EDWIN BOOTH and Mr. CLARKE, brother-in law of BOOTH, gives plausibility to this story.

On the other hand it is said that in no event will the government permit the remains to pass into the hands of anybody, but that it will be disposed so that no traces of it can be hereafter found; and again, in corroboration of this, we have statements of persons who claim to have witnessed what they relate, and who say they saw the Surgeon-General take the autopsy that the body was afterward dissected and, in separate pieces, sewed in cloth, with heavy weights, and placed in a small vessel, which made a short, circuitous trip upon the Potomac, and, without landing, returned to the navy-yard, minus the body, again.

Another still inconfirmation of this says he watched his opportunity and secured a part of the body which he now has in his possession.

These are some of the dozens of rumors prevailing here and nearly of them received by the public with credence. Whether there be truth in any of these reports, I am unable to say.

And again it is said a great plot has been discovered, that there have been to-day more than a hundred arrests of well known citizens of this place in consequence of discoveries made since HARROLD was brought here.

Col. BAKER's immense body of detective aids and scouts are coming in by dozens, covered with dust, fatigued and disappointed.

Another report is that as Senator SUMNER was returning to his rooms last night he was shot at by some person who fled and was not recognized. How near the ball of the would-be assassin failed of its object is not known. This morning Mr. SUMNER received an anonymous letter, saying, "It is fortunate for you that my aim was not good."

DISPATCH TO THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON, Friday, April 28.

The excitement which prevailed in this city yesterday has considerably subsided. While all regret that the assassin, owing to the rashness of the soldiers engaged in the capture, was not taken alive, they at the same time felt grateful that the murderer had paid the penalty of his crime. Had he been brought to the Washington Navy-yard alive nothing could have withstood the fury of the excited congregated thousands.

What disposition was made of BOOTH's body after the autopsy upon it, it is impossible to ascertain, but that a fitting disposal, in keeping with his ignominious career, was made is certain.

The public breathe more freely, as the great burden which has been on their minds for the past two weeks has been removed.

HARROLD, who has been exhibiting great stoicism since his capture, now appears to seem to realize the awful position in which he is placed, and through the day has given way to frequent fits of weeping. He is quite young, and his appearance would indicate him to be not over twenty. Some time ago he was an applicant for the position of Surgeon's Steward on the Potomac flotilla, but was unsuccessful.

WASHINGTON, Friday, April 28.

Very great curiosity prevails as to the disposition to be made of the remains of BOOTH; but it seems the authorities are not willing to give the wretched carcase the honor of meeting the public gaze, and it will probably be deposited in whatever place promises the most obscurity for them. Yesterday a photographic view of the body was taken before it was taken from the monitor. It was then placed in an ordinary gray army blanket, in which it was sewed up. A plain casket-shaped box, measuring six feet by two, had been previously made in the joiner's shop for the remains, but it was not used.

THE BURIAL OF BOOTH.

CINCINNATI, Friday, April 28.

At a public meeting at Dayton yesterday, it was resolved that the body of BOOTH be taken to mid-ocean and there buried.

THE CASE OF THE "GEORGIAN."

The Examination of "Larry" McDonald—He is Committed for Trial.

From the Toronto Globe, April 27.

WILLIAM LAWRENCE MCDONALD, arrested on suspicion of violating the neutrality laws, was brought up yesterday morning, at the Police Court, before Alderman J. VANCE. The court-room was well filled with Southern sympathizers, among whom was the St. Albans raider Bennett H. Young, and the public generally. The court was delayed for some time, through Godfrey J. Hyams being before the Grand Jury in the case of Bennett H. Young. Mr. Patterson, of the firm of Harrison & Patterson, appeared for the Crown, and Mr. McMichael for the prisoner. The first witness placed in the box was Godfrey J. Hyams, who, after he had been sworn in the usual form on a copy of the New Testament, was asked by Mr. McMichael of what religion he was, to which Hyams replied, "none in particular," and as to his belief said: "I believe in God." Hyams said that he was once a Jew, that he had never abandoned his religion; that he was of whatever religion suited him. He believed in the Jewish and Christian religions alike. There were some things in the Bible that he did not believe, and also some things in the New Testament. Hyams was then sworn on a copy of the Bible, and, being examined by Mr. Patterson, said: I live in York-street in this city, and know the prisoner, McDonald; I have known him for upward of twelve months; he resided, when I first knew him, with his sister on Adelaide-street; his occupation within the past Winter and Fall has been making and preparing munitions of war as agent, under Col. Thompson, of the Confederate States of America; have seen him, during that time, making torpedoes, hand-shells, Greek fire, and other explosive missiles; in the process he used powder, shot, fine coal, and pitch; he had a small furnace and iron boiler in a house on Agnes-street, where those things were made and into which he moved in October last; there were several young men frequented his place; McDonald told me that these munitions and preparations were made to be used upon the steamer Georgian, which was to proceed from Collingwood upon raiding expeditions against the United States of America; I have been at McDonald's place on Agnes-street since the 6th day of February last; since that time I have seen in his place hand-shells and implements of war which he told me he was finishing and preparing to take to Collingwood for the steamer Georgian; I have been at Collingwood within the last three weeks; I saw McDonald there on the Georgian, together with another man named Bates, and others whose names I do not know; munitions of war have been concealed in the house on Agnes-street, deposited under the ground floor, through a small trap-door made for the purpose in the floor of the house.

Cross-examined by Mr. McMichael.—I am a shoemaker by trade; I have been engaged in some of the raids and occupations above mentioned, and by these means became informed of and intimate with the action of McDonald and others; I came from St. Catharines to Toronto in December last; I never saw McDonald in St. Catharines; when I said he left the munitions there for me, I knew it from a letter received from him; I know Mr. John Nasmith, of Toronto; I did not tell him that I received those munitions from Capt. Beall; I was not agent for the Confederate Government; I have seen McDonald's signature to a paper as agent of the Confederate Government; I did not know when I received the letter from McDonald that it was his handwriting; I have since had opportunity of knowing his handwriting, and knew that it was his; I burned the letter; I have seen documents in the hands of Dr. Bates, signed by McDonald as "agent of the Confederate Government;" McDonald told me in Collingwood that to divert suspicion they intended making some trips carrying wheat freight, &c., and then start upon a raid; I was sent to Collingwood by Capt. Prince, who paid my fare; at that time I had given information of the above matters; I have received money from Col. Thompson ($100;) I had volunteered information to Mr. Thurston, American Consul here, before going to Collingwood, as mentioned; I asked McDonald for permission to go upon the expedition on board the Georgian; I told the facts to Mr. Thurston and Capt. Prince about three or four weeks ago; about two weeks since munitions of war were taken from my house at my instance by Detective McGarry; they were the same brought from St. Catharines; Mr. McDonald told me they were intended for the steamer Georgian; when the munitions and implements were taken from the house on Agnes-street; there was no person lying there; when I saw McDonald in this house in February last (since the 6th,) he was occupied in packing up various articles of war, munitions, &c., in small boxes, to take to Collingwood; I saw McDonald in Preston's tobacco factory, York-street, count out in Canadian bills and gold, and give to Dr. Bates, the sum of $18,000; Dr. Bates gave to McDonald a bond for 18,000 acres of land to which I was witness; I asked what was in the bond, and was told this was the substance, and that the land lay in Western Virginia and Mississippi; I believe in the Bible, the existence of God, and a future state of heaven and hell.

By Mr. Patterson.—McDonald frequently told me about the use of the Georgian; McDonald told me it was a mistake to have the Georgian in the name of a foreigner; he told me that Dr. Bates was making over-charges for the incidental expenses of the Georgian, and that the boat had been taken from him; I saw the papers by which the boat was turned over to McDonald.

By Mr. McMichael.—The raids were to be made upon the lakes, and against Detroit and other cities; the Georgian was to be confined for the present to the lakes, and afterwards to go farther; I heard McDonald say she would be "a mighty fine thing" for blockade-running.

Robert Spence sworn, said—I am Collector of Customs at Toronto; Collingwood is within my jurisdiction; upon instructions I proceeded thither on the morning of the 4th April last, to investigate matters of suspicious character reported to the government relative to the steamer Georgian; I there saw McDonald, who appeared to be in charge; after making precautionary arrangements to prevent the vessel leaving port, I returned to Toronto; I again went out to Collingwood on the 7th April, and found Mr. McDonald, who still appeared to be in charge; from instructions and information, I then took the vessel in charge, and placed my officer at Collingwood in custody, having unfitted her machinery for work, and consenting to another man named by Mr. Denison—the registered owner—being allowed to remain on board; the steamer Georgian appears by register to be owned by G. T. Denison, since 24th January last.

Cross-examined by Mr. McMichael—At that date she was under seizure for an action of our revenue laws; the government before this had been applied to, and consented to the transfer of the vessel from John Bates to G. T. Denison, and the registry was made the 24th of January; upon my first visit to Collingwood I did not search the vessel; I left another to do so, and by report from him was informed there was nothing of suspicious character in the form of munitions, &c., aboard; McDonald introduced himself to me by name; I saw no act of his beyond his general bearing that indicated him to be in charge of the Georgian; has told me the vessel was to be used in towing, also, that she was to run between Collingwood and Bedford; he told me that his business was that of a mechanic—a joiner I think; the expression that "McDonald appeared to be in charge," I intend to mean that from what I saw on board, the impression on my mind was that he was chief of those on board.

Sergt.-Maj. Hastings, City Police, sworn, said:—I know the house on Agnes-street in which McDonald lived; I went there on the 26th of March last; there was no person living in it then; I found a lot of bullet moulds, cartridges, potash kettle, with tar in it, a furnace, &c.; I reported to the Chief of Police afterwards, on the 31st of March; I went again and found in the cellar below the floor a torpedo, which I brought down to the Chief of Police; that night I went again, in company with Detective Mick and the witness Hyam, the latter of whom went into the cellar and handed up to me twenty-six torpedoes out of the water in the cellar.

J. A. Posey sworn, said—I have been living in Toronto for twelve months; I know McDonald and the house in which he lived on Agnes-street; I have been there several times; upon one occasion about Christmas I was there and helped to "stow away" some shells and a large kettle; McDonald was there and told me he expected that the house would be searched; there was a trap-door in the hall, and I helped to put the shells down this door; I carried them to a Mr. Heming's, and he put them down the hole; there might have been about fifty shells; I did not count them; I saw some powder canisters and some cartridges; saw a Southerner named Holt, and another named Norval; in November last McDonald asked me to meet him on York-street; I did not see him there, but met a man named Price, who took me to McDonald's house; McDonald there took down my name and the names of others, for the purpose, as he said, of going on an expedition upon the steamer Georgian; I afterward, on the 16th November, I think) went to Collingwood and took with me some cartridges; there were two others went with me; McDonald went with us as far as York-street, on our way to the cars, and gave one of us money to pay our fare; in Collingwood we met Holt, who told me not to go aboard the boat, as it would excite suspicion; Norval followed us from Toronto to Collingwood and told us that the expedition was not to take place, and we returned to Toronto; I afterwards was in McDonald's, in January; have not been there since: McDonald knew that Price paid me $10 the day I first went to his house.

Cross-examined by Mr. McMichael—The $10 were given me to help to pay off my board; I was to go on raids on board the Georgian; I was employed for such by Mr. McDonald; the raids were to be against the United States; I did not know where; in June last McDonald gave me money ($35) to go to the Confederate army.

At this stage the counsel for the Crown stated that a true bill had been found by the grand jury against McDonald in this matter, and proceedings would be stayed, and said the case for the prosecution was closed. He asked that the prisoner be committed for trial.

Mr. McMichael argued that there was not sufficient evidence to warrant a committal for trial. By the witnesses' statements it had been shown that the occurrences referred to took place before the 6th of February, and there was no evidence that munitions and material had been provided after the 6th of February, the date of the passing of the act.

Alderman Vance said that although before the 6th of February there was evidence of providing and preparing the means for an expedition, raid or enterprise against a foreign State, in all portions of the evidence referring to a date subsequent to that there was no evidence of an intention to do so. It simply closed by stating that the "munitions were being prepared and furnished to be taken to Collingwood by the steamer Georgian," without stating the objection, except by inference from former portions of the evidence, relating to dates prior to the 6th February, the date of the passing of the act. Under the circumstances he would leave it for a jury to decide, and commit the prisoner for trial at the next court of competent jurisdiction.

FROM CANADA.

Contemplated Rebel Raid into Vermont.

BURLINGTON, Vt., Friday, April 28.

Information was received here this morning that the rebel sympathizers in Canada were preparing for another raid on the frontier towns of this State.

The Federal and State militia authorities are on the alert, and are fully prepared to repel any invasion.

Guards have been placed on the steamers on Lake Champlain, and troops have been ordered to the more exposed frontier towns.

The militia of this city have been notified to be in readiness for any emergency.

The rebels will receive a warm reception if they should come along.

Suicide in Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Friday, April 28.

A well-known citizen of Baltimore committed suicide last Monday, a short distance from this city, by shooting himself with a pistol. No cause could be assigned for the rash act, except that he had recently seemed depressed and melancholy.

Subsequent events have induced the suspicion that he was in some way implicated in the conspiracy, and last night the body was exhumed, embalmed, and sent to Washington, by orders of the government.

The affair causes much speculation, and there are many reports in connection with it, as well as some facts, which it is deemed imprudent to publish at present.

THE OBSEQUIES.

Westward Progress of the Funeral Cortege.

From New-York, Across Pennsylvania, into Ohio.

Impressive Demonstrations Along the Route.

President Lincoln Drawing near to His Old Home.

WESTFIELD, N. Y., Friday, April 28.

The remains of ABRAHAM LINCOLN arrived here at 1 o'clock this morning. The bells were tolled and minute guns fired.

CLEVELAND, Friday, April 28.

All along the route from Buffalo to this city, which was reached this morning, the usual demonstrations of sorrow were witnessed. The remains were escorted by a large military and civic procession to a beautifully constructed temple prepared to receive them, and soon thereafter the face of the honored dead was open to the thousands of spectators, who in admirable order entered and retired from the inclosure.

The entire population of this city are abroad, all seemingly impressed with the solemnity of the occasion.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Friday, April 28.

On the way to Cleveland, leaving Buffalo at 10:10 P. M., Thursday night, we successively passed Hamburgh, North Evans, Angola, Farnham, Irving and Silver Creek. At all the stations the immediate residents had assembled, some bearing lanterns and mourning flags in their hands, while on their houses were plainly discernable the usual drapery and mottoes expressive of the prevailing grief.

DUNKIRK, Friday, April 28—12:10.

Here, as at the preceding stations, the platform is elaborately decorated. Festoons of evergreens extend all along the eaves of the structure, while from the ceiling gracefully droop white and black folds. The background, covered with flags interlaced with crape, completes the artificial arrangement. But the chief feature is the group of thirty-six young ladies, representing the States of the Union. They are dressed in white, each with a broad, black scarf resting on the shoulder, and holding in the hand a national flag. We have a fine view of the tableaux by the glare of more than a hundred lamps and torches. The crowd here is dense. The tolling of bells, the solemn music by an instrumental band, and the firing of minute guns, contribute to the interest of the scene.

BROCTON, 12:30.

Many spectators are congregated here, and the place is illuminated.

WESTFIELD, 1 A. M.

We stop here for wood and water. A party of five ladies, namely: Mrs. DRAKE, wife of Col. DRAKE, killed at Cold Harbor; Mrs. BREWER, Mrs. SKINNER and the Misses TUCKER, brought in a cross and a wreath of flowers. On the cross were the words:

"Ours the Cross; Thine the Crown."

All of them were affected to tears, and considered it a sacred privilege to kiss the coffin.

Ripley has been passed and now (1:32) we are at the line which separates New-York from Pennsylvania. Maj.-Gen. DIX and staff took leave of us, and F. F. Farrar, Mayor of Erie, George W. Starr, F. B. Vincent, E. P. Bennett, J. T. Walsher and Capt. F. A. Roe, U. S. N., came on board.

Here Miss LEONORA CRAWFORD, aged 12 years, presented a cross and wreath with the words "Rest in Peace," attached. The scene was illuminated by a large bonfire and Chinese lanterns.

We pass Moreheads, Harbor Creek and Westerville, at all of which places crowds had assembled, manifesting unabated interest.

ERIE, 2:50.

There was no particular demonstration at this place.

The employes running this train are the same who were on the train that brought the late President to this point while on his way to Washington, just previous to his first inauguration.

Swanville, Fairview, Girard and Springfield are passed.

CONNEAUT, 3:48.

We are now in Ohio, and hurry on through Kingsville, Ashtabula, Saybrook, Geneva, Unionville, Madison, Perry, Paineville, Menter and Willoughby. The depot buildings are draped and large numbers of people are at these places assembled. Minute guns are fired and bells tolling.

Hurlbut, Jacob Hovey and James Warsick.

CLEVELAND—7 A. M.

As we pass the lake side of the city thousands of persons are gathered on the sloping green hillsides, all having a good view of the train. High up we see an arch, with the inscription, "ABRAHAM LINCOLN." It is draped in mourning, and the supports are covered with alternate stripes of black and white. Immediately under the arch is a lady, dressed in horizontal bars of the national colors, to represent the Genius of Liberty. She holds in her hand a flag, and this, together with her cap, is bandaged with mourning. It is a beautiful and expressive figure.

All places of business are closed. Colors are displayed at half-mast. A national salute of 36 guns is fired, and half-hour guns will be fired till sunset. We proceed to Euclid-street station in the cars. This is the point where Mr. LINCOLN embarked for Washington just previous to his first inauguration; and here the procession was formed.

The coffin was placed in a hearse, the roofing of which was covered with a national flag, with black plumes, and otherwise tastefully and appropriately adorned. The military escort embraced Maj.-Gen. HOOKER and Staff, and Gov. BROUGH, of Ohio, and Staff, and the civic escort of civic guard of honor was followed by the United States civil officers, veteran soldiers, members of the City Council, and City Officers of Cleaveland and other cities, members of the bar, the Board of Trade, Knights Templars, the Orders of Masons and Odd Fellows, Temperance Societies, Fenian Brotherhood, St. Vincent's Society, the German Benevolent Society, the Equal Rights League, &c., and all the Benevolent and other Associations and citizens on foot—a multitude of them.

The procession embraced all conditions of the people, without distinction of party or religion, and it presented a decidedly fine appearance, as it moved through the streets of this truly beautiful city from Euclid-street to Erie; down Erie to Superior and thence to the Park.

The sidewalks were densely crowded with mournful looking spectators, while thousands of persons beheld the cortège from the steps and windows of the beautiful residences which line the entire route. Emblems of mourning were everywhere prominent, together with expressive mottoes.

Every stranger is loud in his expressions of admiration of the splendid order of the arrangements.

In the park has been erected a building especially for the reception of the remains to which they have now been conveyed. The building is 24 by 36 feet in dimensions, and 14 feet high from the ground to the plate. The roof is of pagoda style, and the rafters are covered with white cloth over the centre of the main roof, and directly over the catafalque a second roof is raised about four feet, and covered in like manner. The catafalque consists of a raised dais four by twelve feet on the ground. The coffin rests on the dais about two feet above the floor. On the four corners stand columns supporting a canopy. The columns have been draped and wreathed with evergreens and white flowers in the most beautiful manner. Black cloth, falling as curtains, and fringed with silver, are caught and looped back to these columns. From the centre of the canopy, the floor and sides of the dais are covered with black cloth drooping from the four corners, bordered with silver fringe; and the borders of the cornice are brilliantly ornamented with white rosettes and stars of silver. The inside of the canopy is lined with black cloth, gathered in folds, and white and black crape serves as plumage to the posts. At the corners of the catafalque, in the centre, is a large star of black velvet, with thirty-six stars, one for each State in the Union. The floor of the dais is covered with flowers, and a figure of the Goddess of Liberty is placed at the head of the coffin. The ceiling of the building is hung with beautiful festoons of evergreen and flowers and white. The four posts which sustain on either side the pagoda roof are hung with large rosettes of mingled evergreen and magnolias of two varieties. Appropriate drapery hangs from the cornice of the building and swings from pillar to pillar of the fairy structure. Glass lamps have been attached to the pillars of the catafalque and to other points of the building so that the remains can be easily seen at night and to good advantage.

The religious services, after the remains had been placed upon the dais, were performed by Right Reverend Bishop MCILVAINE, who, in the course of his prayer, asked the blessing of heaven on the immediate family of the deceased, and a sanctification of the event which had called the nation to mourn to the good of him who had succeeded to the Chief Magistracy. He then read a part of the funeral service of the Episcopal Church, slightly altering their text to suit the occasion. These services were intensely solemn, and moved many of the listners to tears.

The remains were then exposed to public view. The arrangements are so perfect that every one who desires to see them will have no difficulty in being gratified. It is raining here to-day, but this is no impediment to the throngs passing to the park.

Cleveland has made a demonstration worthy of her citizens. Their sad countenances attest stronger than words the heavy grief which affects all hearts.

CLEVELAND—9 P. M.

The number who witnessed the remains of the President during the day was 180 a minute. Two rows of spectators were constantly passing, one on each side of the coffin. The lid was freshly covered with flowers in the form of harps, crosses and bouquets gathered in the hothouses of Cleveland and laid upon the coffin by ladies representing the Soldiers' Relief Association.

The funeral party were the guests of the corporate authorities. They were quartered at the Weddell House. A more liberal and friendly greeting could not have been extended.

CHARLES L. WILSON, of Chicago, on behalf of a Committee of One Hundred, was here to-day to extend the hospitalities of that city. This committee is to proceed to Michigan city to meet the remains, and will escort them to Springfield. The display at Chicago will be the largest ever known in that city. Forty-one organizations and societies, numbering 25,000 men, have already reported to the Chief Marshal.

At midnight we leave Cleveland, and will arrive at Columbus to-morrow morning. Everywhere deep sorrow has been manifested, and the feeling seems, if possible, to deepen, as we move Westward with the remains to their final resting place.

Gov. BROUGH to-night extended the hospitalities of his residence to the funeral party.

The time fixed for the funeral of the late President is changed from Saturday the 6th to Thursday the 4th of May.

A Case of Illegal Arrest and Imprisonment.

BOSTON, Friday, April 28.

A suit brought by Mr. LEONARD STURTEVANT against A. H. ALLEN for illegal arrest and imprisonment, which has been on trial here for some days in the Supreme Court, was closed this morning, the jury rendering a verdict in favor of Mr. STURTEVANT for $32,500.

At the breaking out of the war Mr. STURTEVANT was doing business in New-Orleans, and upon his coming North was arrested and lodged in jail upon charges of disloyalty preferred against him by Mr. ALLEN.

Missouri Threatened with Invasion.

ST. LOUIS, Friday, April 28.

Reports prevail that a force of from six to twelve thousand rebels, comprising remnants of JEFF. THOMPSON's and JOE SHELBY's brigades, are at Pocahontas, Arkansas, preparing to invade Missouri. A large number of people are leaving the southwest part of the State in consequence. Three regiments have been sent down the river. The reports are undoubtedly exaggerated.

Gen. Wilson's Late Raid.

CINCINNATI, Friday, April 28.

Late Georgia papers give full accounts of Gen. WILSON's late raid, after defeating FORREST at Selma, Ala. After destroying the arsenals and manufactories there, WILSON moved eastward, capturing Montgomery, West Point, Columbus and Macon, scattering the militia on all sides, ruining the only remaining railroad, breaking up machine-shops, destroying stores, and rendering the manufacture of material for future campaigns impossible.

PHILADELPHIA, Friday, April 28.

JAY COOKE reports the subscriptions to the seven-thirty loan to-day at $4,153,500. The largest single subscriptions were $100,000 from Cincinnati, $100,000 from Baltimore, $300,000 from New-York, $200,000 from Boston, and $200,000 from Syracuse. The number of individual subscriptions for amounts of $50 and $100 was 2,901.

Rumors of Reaction—Frequent and Sudden Alarms—Efforts to Establish the Government on a Firm Basis.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Panama, Monday, April 17, 1865.

Since my last the city has been much disturbed by constant reports of an intended reaction, from sudden movements of troops through the streets and suburbs, and from other causes connected with the late revolt of the troops and change in the State administration. Every day or two, an alarm is raised, then a rush of street idlers to their homes, then a banging of doors and drawing of rusty locks, and so on, till another fool fires a pistol in the plaza, or some drunken sailors get up another fight. Last week, a national officer, Gen. Correa, came here from Carthagena under orders from the general government to transport the 200 national troops—the same who revolted—to the State of Bolivar, on the Atlantic. For this purpose he chartered a vessel for $4,000, and sent her to Aspinwall. The Provisional President of the State happened to be at Aspinwall, when Gen. Correa reached there, and not wishing the General to get to Panama ahead of him, chartered a locomotive and presented himself at the cuartel of the troops two hours before the national officer could get a hearing. So, when the General got into town, the troops had their lesson, and their commander was nonplussed. Reports were immediately set afloat that the "outside party" were rising, and would be headed by Correa, and aided by a portion of the garrison. The utmost consternation reigned throughout the town. The militia ("young men" or "flexibles,") were called to arms, the cannon were planted in front of the Church of La Merced, and the heavy tread of the Tiradores, or national troops, resounded through the streets, all looking for the imaginary enemy. But enemy there was not, and never has been, in my opinion. These scares seem to be gotten up for a purpose, and the purpose of this one and some subsequent trampings seems to have been to convince the officers of the national government that the new "popular" government of President Colunje needs national bayonets to keep it on its legs.

It was generally understood that President Colunje had amicably arranged with Gen. Correa to keep the troops for awhile in Panama, and that there would be no more trouble about it. But one day last week there was a flare-up that shows the quarrel still holds good. The General went to one of the quartels in full uniform, and demanded of the officer and soldiers to know if they recognized him as an officer of the national government. They answered, "Yes." "Do you recognize me as your officer?" A unanimous "No!" Upon which the General put a pistol to the head of the officer. The soldiers seized their arms and presented their bayonets at the breast of the General, and he did not fire. Correa was then conducted to the President, who is a very moderate, quiet and sensible man, and the President ordered his release. This, at first, did not suit the President's supporters present, who tore from their lappels their badges, and, it is said, stamped upon them in a terrible rage. They have, however, since "thought better of it," and admit that the President was wiser than they. How all this conflict between the State and National Governments will end no one knows. But the revolutionists seem to be quite confident of the countenance of President Murillo.

In the meantime, our State ruler is at work to establish his government on a firm basis. And pretty much all the foreigners resident here, your correspondent among the number, are glad to perceive that it is to be as near a despotism, or "one man rule," as possible. We have had enough of the "popular ballot" and of the "popular rule" here. Nobody, I believe, not even those who originated this doctrine, and have been its consistent supporters, now believe in it for these latitudes. The fact is, not a quarter part of the "people" who have the privilege of the ballot in these Spanish-American countries, and they are pretty much all alike in that respect, are honest and intelligent enough to use it properly, and are the tools of every designing knave who thirsts for power and place. President Colunje seems to admit this fact. In his decree of April 8, 1865, he orders an electoral college to be constituted thus: He appoints five electors for the district of Panama, and these five appoint all the balance of the electors in the State. And then this body elects a body who are to constitute the State Assembly, and who are to make the new Constitution. In this way you see the President keeps both ends of the wire in his own hands. And that no non-property holder or irresponsible person may creep into the Assembly, the President further decrees that no salary shall be paid the members, and only half of the usual mileage. Now this is just the kind of government we need—if the chief is honest and capable, as Señor Colunje is believed to be—and to begin with, it only lacks the character of frankness to make it perfect.

We have in port the United States double-ender Wateree, and sloop-of-war Cyane. The flag ship Lancaster has gone to Acupulco. The gunboat State of Georgia, Commander Preble, arrived at Aspinwall yesterday. The British steam frigate Liffey is also Aspinwall.

On the reception of the news of the great Union victories before Petersburg, some Americans fired a salute on the Plaza, which caused for the moment considerable alarm in town, the people generally supposing that fighting among the citizens and troops was going on.

The amount of gold received from San Francisco, for New-York, to-day, by the steamer, is only $67,000—a smaller shipment than ever before made.

Illness of Gen. Carrera—Precautions of the Government—Fears of an Uprising—Condition of the Several Republics.

Panama, Monday, April 17, 1865.

The Panama Company's steamship Gautemala, Capt. J. M. Dow, reached Panama from Central American ports on Saturday. She brings the following intelligence from the several Republics:

GUATEMALA.

The anxiety caused by the dangerous illness of Gen. Carrera continued. Daily bulletins had been issued since the 18th of March, and as soon as the gravity of the illness was known in the departments numerous deputations of Indians were sent to the capital. There every precaution was taken by the government in case the worst should happen. The military commandants of the castle and garrison were changed, Gen. Zavala placed in military command, and every disposition in their power made to secure order. Gen. Cerna, lately commandant at Chiquimula, was in Guatemala, and was named by Gen. Carrera as his successor in the Presidency. These dispositions, it is understood, were agreed upon long ago, and were acceptable to the few who comprise the government. The great fear, however, was that a rumor should spread or gain belief among the Indians that el Tata, (the Papa,) as they call him, had been poisoned, or unfairly dealt with, so as not to be capable of recovery; and the fearful consequence would be a war of extermination. These things had long been forseen and feared by the government, and they have looked forward to the event now threatened as a fit opportunity to change the form of government. In reality, while Gen. Carrera was President for life, with power to name his successor, and had unbounded influence with the Indians, and inspired dread among the whites by the promptness of his vengeance on his opponents, there was no need of changing the form of the government, which was a republic only in name. But when a new chief must come in, who does not unite these qualifications, and whose power might be disputed by other military chiefs, no better qualified than he, the government has long thought that such an opportunity might be improved to give a more stable form and shape to their system. There has been regularly published, therefore, in the Tiempo, (a weekly journal printed at the government printing-office, edited, it is said, by government employes, and contributed by the reverend fathers,) a series of articles on forms of government, the unimportance of names by which governments may be called, provided the end of government be fulfilled; and deducing from history proofs of the superiority of a constitutional monarchy to republicanism, which is declared to have failed in Spanish American countries.

The condition of Gen. Carrera on the 1st of April was still declared to be more satisfactory; but it is known to those who are behind the scenes that this disease—an uncontrollable disentery—is one from which, in the opinion of the best informed, he cannot recover. His death may, therefore, be soon looked for, and with it will come, undoubtedly, an uprising of the Democratic or Liberal party in the States of Guatemala, Salvador and Nicaragua. The last two will then join with Honduras against the government.

The finances of Guatemala still continue in a wretched state. The annual deficit is about $200,000, which is met by temporary loans—some at two per cent. a month. The Congress had passed a law for direct tax, but the government has not the courage to attempt it. The government managed, the other day, to get $100,000 to pay the troops, at 1½ per cent. a month. The import duties have been largely increased, and importations must fall off before a diminished consumption.

SALVADOR.

Everything in this republic was, in appearance, quiet on the 6th inst., but the threatenings of commotion, if the death of Carrera should be announced, were evident; and the government was "catching soldiers," and fortifying itself against any demonstration. A very important law was passed by the late Congress, (15th February,) declaring the whole amount of duties payable in silver money. Hitherto but ten and a half per cent. of twenty-three and a half per cent. was so payable; the rest receivable in government paper. This last had become much extended during and after the late civil troubles, and the new government, (M. Duenas,) in its extremity had issued new special orders on the portion of duties then payable in money, on the faith of which he received advances which enabled him to go on. These are now, by his own recommendation, all ignored and dishonored by the government thus relieved. They are capitalized and six per cent promised on them. This step had very naturally caused great dissatisfaction, and would undoubtedly strengthen the hands of the enemies of the government in case of an uprising.

The imports of Salvador during the past year were $1,500,000. The exports during the same time were valued at $3,000,000. The annual revenue of the State is nearly $600,000, which, with management and no plunder, ought to pay all expenses, (set down at $285,000,) and the six per cent. on the one million of indebtedness, besides paying off a portion, in each year, of the capital debt. The debt to foreigners amounts to over one hundred thousand dollars. This, of course, has to be paid in money. The President and Ministers have lately got new houses handsomely furnished.

HONDURAS.

We have dates to the 1st April. Everything was quiet. The disaffection and movements being entirely put down, and no apprehension being now entertained of any disturbance by Gen. Xatruch, or his partizans, who from San Miguel, in Salvador, where, although Vice-President of Honduras, he had been appointed Military Governor, he had been scheming to supplant Gen. Medina. On his representations the Government of Salvador removed him, on condition that Gen. Medina should join in the decree of non-intervention against Costa Rica. This was done for quiet and security at home, but it is well known that the Government of Honduras will not stand in the way of the uprising of the "Liberales" in Nicaragua against Gen. Martinez, or in Salvador against Mr. Duenas.

NICARAGUA.

An outbreak occurred on the 1st, on the report of Carrera's death. Several arrests were made and search was still made for those supposed to be "compromised." This shows what the feeling is, and how ripe for an outbreak are the opponents of Gen. Martinez's administration. On the 9th, order was somewhat restored, and the President was expected to visit Corinto soon. A very destructive fire occurred at Chinandega, on the 31st of March, on the premises of Messrs. Fitzgerald & Hussey, which resulted in the almost total destruction of their extensive establishment, consisting of a saw-mill, cotton-gin and cotton-press. Only the steam-engine and cotton-press, in a damaged condition, were saved. All the loose cotton at the time in the mill, both ginned and unginned, the amount of which is not known, and from thirty to forty bales, of four hundred pounds each, were consumed. Some eight or ten small native houses in the neighborhood, were also destoyed. The total loss is estimated at from $30,000 to $40,000. The fire, it is thought, was the work of an incendiary. Cotton had previously been selling as high as $10 for one hundred pounds unginned; making it cost on board about $35, but it had fallen on receipt of the news from England, and of course was likely to go still lower.

Obituary.

HON. O. C. MERRILL.

Hon. Orasmus C. Merrill died at Bennington Centre, April 11, aged 89 years, 9 months and 24 days. He was born in Farmington, Conn., on the day of the battle of Bunker Hill—so he has lived from the first to the last great battle for American Independence. At the age of 16 he settled in Bennington, and in early life connected himself with the First Congregational Church, of which he was always an exemplary member. Adopting the law as his profession, he quickly acquired a good reputation as a lawyer, and by his courtesy of manners and high character for integrity commanded public respect and confidence. At the age of 40, Mr. Merrill was elected to Congress, and served from 1817 to 1819, when the late Hon. Rollin C. Mallory successfully contested his right to the seat. He served two years as State's Attorney, four years as Counselor, one year as Senator, two years as Register and six years as Judge of Probate Court.

HON. JAMES T. HALE.

Hon. James T. Hale, member of the Thirty-sixth, Thirty-seventh and Thirty-eighth Congress, died on the 8th inst., at his residence in Bellefonte, Penn., in his 57th year. Judge Hale was an Episcopalian, and the vestry, of which he was for thirty-years an active member, declare him to have been "exemplary for piety, kind and unassuming in deportment, of large-hearted benevolence, a true lover of and successful teacher in the Sunday-school—a man who walked humbly with his God."

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

MILITARY AFFAIRS.

Closing Up the Provost-Marshals' Offices—Movements of Troops.

The District Provost-Marshals are busily engaged in closing up the business connected with the late draft.

On Monday Captains West and Costar, of the Fifth and Sixth Districts, will remove their headquarters into the building occupied by Captain Erhardt, of the Fourth District, No. 176 Hudson-street, and Captains Manierre and Dunning, of the Eighth and Ninth Districts, will remove to the building in Third-avenue, occupied by Captain Wagner, thus saving the rent of four buildings.

Only two or three clerks will be retained by each Provost-Marshal after the 1st of May, and the guards will be relieved and returned to garrison duty. The commissary stores, accoutrements, &c., will be turned over to Major Van Vliet.

It is supposed that the Provost-Marshals will retain their offices for the present, but it appears from the following circular that the Surgeons are to be honorably discharged:

War Department,
Provost-Marshal-General's Office,
Washington, D. C., April 25, 1865.

Surgeon Board of Enrollment, — District, State of New-York:

Doctor: I am directed by the Provost-Marshal-General to inform you that the emergency requiring your services as Surgeon of Board of Enrollment having, to a great degree, ceased to exist, by reason of the stoppage of the draft and recruiting for the army, it is extremely probable that you may soon be honorably discharged from further official connection with this bureau.

You will, therefore, carefully and accurately prepare your "monthly medical reports of recruits and substitutes, drafted and enrolled men," and your final "report of the draft," (form 66,) to include the 30th day of April, 1865, and forward them punctually on the last day of the present month to this office.

In case you have not already forwarded the required "Monthly Medical Reports" for the months of September, October, November and December, 1864, and January, February and March, 1865, on final reports of the second and third drafts, you will at once prepare such reports as fully as your records will allow, and forward them without delay. I am, Doctor, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

J. H. BAXTER,
Surgeon U. S. Vols., and Brevet Lieut.-Colonel.

The government continue to send troops to the front although recruiting is suspended. These men have enlisted under the last call, and have arrived from the interior. On Thursday transportation was furnished 1,000 men, and to-day 350 will be sent forward. The Sixth and Seventh Regiments of Regulars, now garrisoning the forts, have also been ordered to the front.

The Prevention of Small-Pox.

PROPAGATION OF THE DISEASE — STARTLING FACTS.

From the report lately presented to the Legislature by the Committee on Public Health, on the subject of small-pox, and the legislation requisite for its prevention, it appears that the disease certainly exists in this city, and that there is no adequate legal power to prevent its spreading. The report shows that persons taken with this disease are allowed to travel in the cars and stages which are constantly running in the principal thoroughfares; that strangers taken sick at the hotels or boarding-houses are removed to the Small-pox Hospital in covered carriages, which perhaps the next hour are occupied by the wives and families of citizens; and that at some of the hotels strangers are put into rooms and beds occupied the night before by small-pox patients.

Dr. Smith, of New-York, testified before the committee that at some time during the past year there were discovered six hundred and forty-four cases of small-pox. It is said that in a building adjoining the largest wholesale dry goods store on the American continent, the small-pox has existed and propagated itself for the last nine months. This den is situated in the busiest part of the city, in the immediate vicinity of West Broadway and Chambers-street, and within a stone's throw of the largest passenger railroad depot in the city.

The report also contains the following:

"Another very common mode by which the disease is propagated and spread broadest over the land and in our armies, is by the ready-made clothing trade. It is no uncommon thing for the physician, who is called to see a patient with small-pox, to find the child covered with an unfinished garment that the mother has taken home from the shop to make. Is it, then, a matter of surprise that our soldiers as well as citizens throughout the country, without any known exposure, are so often attacked by this terrible disease?"

Dr. Jones, City Physician of Brooklyn, speaking of his efforts to prevent small-pox in Brooklyn, says:

"In many places visited I found large amounts of clothing, principally from New-York, such as coats, pants and vests, in numbers say from one to six dozen in each place, in the hands of workmen to make up for the large clothing establishments of New-York, and elsewhere; I have seen children thickly covered with small-pox pustules lying on the shop-board with a lot of such goods serving them as pillows. I have found them in cribs, on cradles or beds, temporized on chairs, covered with these goods as with quilts. I have found in a number of instances small-pox matter in many places deposited on these goods."

Dr. Jones remarks further:

"I have known coachmen, car conductors and drivers, washer-women and house-cleaners to go direct from the sick to their several daily vocations, washer-women to bring soiled clothes and wash and iron them in the same room with the sick, to take clothes from the bodies and beds of the sick into their homes in large tenement houses to, as they term it, 'do up.'

I have known milliners and mantua-makers to receive their customers in a room adjoining which would lay a case of small-pox. In all such and many other cases that might be cited, proper measures have been adopted to protect the community.

We have in this city a number of small retail stores; many of the owners thereof, with their families, large or small, as the case may be, occupy rooms and live on the same floor where the store is kept. In some instances I have found a store in front, a sleeping room or apartment made by a board partition reaching only half way to the ceiling, and to the rear of this a place which answered for kitchen, dining, sitting and general living room.

In the beds I have found, in some instances, as many as three cases of small-pox; in one instance I found three in one bed sick with small-pox, and in the general room one dead of the same disease, several neighbors sitting therein, and the family dining in the store. In passing from the general room to the store you came in direct contact with the sick, the wooden partitions reaching only half way to the ceiling; one atmosphere was common to all places on that floor; in such a place as this customers were received in a poisoned atmosphere, waited upon by persons direct from the bedside of the sick or dead, and supplied with goods capable of infecting hundreds. I have even found children sick with this disease lying under the counter over which the mother was waiting upon and selling goods to a customer."

The prophylactic against small-pox is vaccination; but this end cannot be attained except through the agency of strong laws energetically enforced.

Dr. J. G. Balfour, of Chelsea, England, remarks that, "although it has been abundantly proved that vaccination will prevent small-pox, yet it is now generally admitted that its protecting influence is not of life-long duration, but that it diminishes in proportion to the lapse of time from the vaccination, until it has been several times repeated, or until the system has been so thoroughly infected with the vaccine poison that it will then act as a permanent protection equally as well as if the person had previously suffered from the small-pox itself.

The bill drawn and presented to the Assembly by Dr. Richardson, making vaccination compulsory, was defeated on the third reading. It is to be hoped that statistics of the disease will be carefully preserved during the present year, so that an appeal may be made to the Legislature of 1866, which it will not venture to disregard.

Sergt. Corbett, Mr. Lincoln's Avenger.

The following letter, written a few weeks ago by Corbett to one of his former employers in this city, shows that he was deeply imbued with religious feelings, and that, while battling stoutly for the Union, he was also a good soldier of the church militant. His employer, Mr. Brown, states that Corbett was a man of pure life, a humble, prayerful Christian, and much given to deeds of charity:

Vienna, Va., Feb. 1, 1865.

To James H. Brown:

Dear Sir: As I made a promise that I would write to you when I got to my regiment, I now attempt to do so. Thank God my health is improving, and I am now prepared to serve my country again in the field. They have promoted me to be sergeant, dating back to the 1st November, and yesterday I came off guard having been sergeant of the guard. So to-day I have a little chance to write.

I was in Camp Parole a few days, and then was sent on to Camp Distribution, and from there to my regiment. I find things here favorable in general, and my old comrade, Sergt. Irvine, glad to see me in particular; in fact, they all seemed glad to see me back from my Southern tour. May God grant that I may never be so favored again!....Our Chaplain has left us; but we expect that meetings will be carried on, as the Christian Commission have started a station here, and they now hold meetings on the Sabbath at the hospitals, brigade and regimental. But when their brigade tent is ready, I expect we will have meetings also through the week.

The Fifth Pennsylvania Artillery are here with us; and I hope to get better acquainted with them, as I hear there are Christians among them. They have a good band and so have we, so we have considerable music sometimes; but I hope we will have a good revival by and by, and that will be better than brass bands. God is blessing us at home in our church, I hear. If you see any sinners, and have a good chance, tell them to come to Jesus, and in heaven we shall rejoice with them. Remember me to Mr. ——, and all my old friends that you may see, and tell them I am still fighting the good fight of faith, and hope to enjoy eternal life in glory. If you see any of the old Twelfth, tell them I will try and bring back a good report, if I come at all, and, if not, I hope to leave a good report behind. I will now close, wishing you prosperity in all things.

BOSTON CORBETT,
Co. L, Sixteenth New-York Cavalry.

Fires.

IN EAST NINTH-STREET.

At about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Messrs. Hoffman & Fanning's carpenter shop, in the rear of No. 338 East Ninth-street, was destroyed by a fire whose origin does not appear. The building, which is owned by Mr. William B. Pinckney, was not entirely consumed. Messrs. Hoffman & Fanning's loss is estimated at $4,000, and their insurance is $2,000, in the Rutgers office. The damage to the building, which is about $2,000, is covered by insurance.

INCENDIARISM.

A stable in One Hundred and Twenty-fourth-street, between First and Second avenues, which was owned by Mr. Sylvester Van Valkenberg, and occupied by Mrs. Wyckoff, was destroyed by a fire of incendiary origin at about 1 o'clock yesterday morning. The loss is estimated at $500; no insurance.

Police Trials.

CITIZENS' COMPLAINTS—BEFORE COMMISSIONERS ACTON, BERGEN AND M'MURRAY.

Friday being the day on which the commission listen to such complaints as citizens may enter against members of the force, many citizens appeared and made their statements. There were, however, but two noteworthy trials, as follows:

Mr. Philo Johnson, of No. 157 Chambers-street, appeared against Policeman Thomas Conlin, of the Fifth Ward, and made affidavit that on the morning of the 14th inst., seeing a man brutally ill-treating a calf in Chambers-street, he called upon the officer to apprehend the man; but Officer Conlin paid no heed to his request, and, upon his pressing the matter, arrested him and took him to the Fifth Ward Police Station, and there made a charge of disorderly conduct; but Sergeant Farrel, who was in charge at the time, declined to entertain the charge and released Mr. Johnson from restraint. Mr. Johnson said that he made complaint before the commissioners merely that the officer might be instructed in his duties, and President Acton reprimanded Officer Conlin and bade him return to his duties.

Mr. L. Fisher, of No. 260 Stanton-street, conductor on one of the Third-avenue Railroad cars, preferred a serious charge against Roundsman Watson, of the Fourth Ward, alleging that on Sunday evening the officer, who was standing near the Shakespeare Hotel, discharged his pistol, sending a bullet through the complainant's car. The bullet grazed the head of Officer Bushred, who was in the car. Conductor Fisher stopped his car, and on making inquiry learned that a pistol had been discharged by Watson, and he thereupon demanded that officer's number, but failed to get it. Roundsman Watson, on being asked whether he had anything to say in excuse for his conduct, said that he was merely trying his pistol, but was not aware that it would send a bullet so far. The commissioners took the case under advisement, and adjourned to Wednesday morning next.

The Police Courts.

THE TOMBS—BEFORE JUSTICE DOWLING.

Late on Thursday night, Andrew Williams, an English seaman, and James Barr, of No. 127 Cedar-street, fought in Broadway, near the Astor House, and Williams stabbed Barr in the left side with a sharp pocket-knife, inflicting a serious wound. Williams was arrested by policeman O'Connor, of the Third Ward, and, after examination, committed for trial.

Mr. Matthew Armar, of Galloway, Saratoga County, appeared against Thomas Williams, an alleged pickpocket, who was apprehended by Policeman Brogan, of the Second Ward, while in the act of picking Mr. Armar's pocket, as he was testing his strength at a lifting machine near the Park. The accused was committed for trial.

JEFFERSON MARKET—BEFORE JUSTICE LEDWITH.

Mr. Henry C. Cooper, of No. 105 Fourth-avenue, preferred a charge of grand larceny against Henry Bellamy, alleging that that person, who had visited him while he was sick, and aided him in dressing and undressing, had stolen from his bedroom a watch and chain, a signet ring, and other articles. The accused pleaded intoxication in excuse, but the Justice declined to entertain such a plea, and committed Bellamy in default of $1,000 bail.

Coroners' Inquests.

BY CORONER COLLIN.

Yesterday morning, Policeman Abraham Sickles, of the Eleventh Ward, found in the dock, at the foot of Stanton-street, the body of Phillip Murtha, a boatman, who fell overboard and was drowned three months ago. The body was recognized by Mrs. Rose Murtha, of No. 139 Goerck-street, widow of the deceased, and the jury rendered a verdict of "Death by drowning."

BY CORONER GAMBLE.

An unknown woman leaped into McGowan's Creek, at the intersection of One Hundred and Fifth-street and Fourth-avenue, yesterday morning, and was drowned. The suicide was about 32 years of age, and attired in a black calico gown, black merino shawl, red sacque, and dark straw bonnet.

Opening of Mason & Hamlin's Warerooms.

On Thursday night Messrs. Mason & Hamlin, the well-known organ builders of Boston, entertained a large and select company of professionals at the opening of a superb suite of rooms at No. 596 Broadway. To tell a tithe of the pleasant happenings of the evening would require columns of the paper: An elegant entertainment, provided by Delmonico, satisfied the palate of the gathering; witty speeches and humorous, interspersed with Hellenic diabolisms, made the hours speed swiftly by; excellent music from the nimble fingers and well-trained voices of accustomed artists cheered and enlivened every conversational lull, and the exceeding courtesy and thoughtful hospitality of the Messrs. Mason, established the heartiest relations of peace and good will among all men present. At an early market hour on Friday morning the happy party dissolved into its original elements, and the splendid rooms with their frescoed ceilings, depositories of magnificent organs, were left reluctantly.

The hull was built by Roosevelt, Joyce & Waterbury, and her machinery by the Etna Iron Works. She is owned by the New-York Mail Steamship Company.

Arrest by a Provost-Marshal's Officer.—Yesterday afternoon Deputy-Marshal O'Rorke found at the Fulton Shades, in East Broadway, an alleged bounty jumper, who is said to have enlisted and received the large bounties here and elsewhere, under the names of John Smith, William Foster, John Secor, and Billy Crowley. While Officer O'Rorke was taking his prisoner through the Bowery, he contrived to escape, but was recaptured, after an exciting chase, in a dry goods store, and taken to headquarters in Broome-street, corner of Elm, where he is held to await trial by court-martial.

The St. Alban's Bazaar.—The Promenade Concert and Bazaar of St. Alban's Church at Irving Hall, will be open for the last time to-day and this evening.

This is certainly one of the most attractive affairs of the kind we have ever seen in this city, and those who have not visited it, should not fail to attend.

LAW REPORTS.

A Large Verdict Against a Marine Insurance Company.

SUPERIOR COURT—TRIAL TERM.

Before Judge Garvin.

David Wallenstein et al. vs. The Columbian Insurance Company.—The jury in this case, which was fully reported in the Times of Thursday, have rendered a verdict for the full amount claimed, namely, $22,340. The counsel for the defendants have made a motion for a new trial, and the case will be brought before the General Term during the May session.

What is a Legal Defence to a Promissory Note?

SUPERIOR COURT.

Before Justice Barbour and a Jury.

William S. Seymour vs. Edwin J. Brown.—The plaintiff brought this action on a promissory note made by a coal company under their corporate seal, but sued the defendant individually as a trustee under the statute, making him personally liable. The defence was illegality in making the note, and want of consideration, but the defendant admitted the making of the note. It was claimed that the mines of the company being near Chattanooga, they had been compelled to suspend work during the war, and that alleged note was only a memorandum given plaintiff for certain moneys that he had paid out, with the understanding that he was not to be paid until the war was over. The Court held that the defendant having admitted the making of the note, was precluded from showing the circumstances under which it was made, or setting up its legality by way of defence. The defendant withdrew a juror by consent, and the case went over for the term.

Criminal Business.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS.

Before Recorder Hoffman.

John Williams was tried yesterday for grand larceny, upon an indictment charging him with stealing a gold watch from a gentleman named Hutchinson, at the Olympic Theatre, on the 21st of March last.

L. A. Hutchinson being sworn, testified that he was at the Olympic Theatre on the evening of the 21st of March; in coming out from the theatre the prisoner pressed up against the complainant and then went immediately away from him. A moment afterward he missed his watch.

William Bunn testified that he kept an eating-house; that prisoner owed him money for board and money loaned; about the time of the larceny prisoner came to witness and wanted to get money on a watch, and to pay his debt; prisoner left the watch with witness and received $65 on it.

Subsequently Detective Elder, accompanied by the complainant, called on witness, and Mr. Hutchinson fully identified the watch as his property and as the one stolen from him at the theatre. The jury found the prisoner guilty without leaving their seats, and he was remanded for sentence.

Margaret Keller was tried for grand larceny, being charged with stealing a gold watch from a lady by whom she was employed.

Amanda Poep, being sworn, testified that the prisoner lived in her family as a servant; that Margaret left suddenly one night and immediately afterward Mrs. Poep missed her watch and some articles of clothing.

Officer Tilden testified that he arrested the prisoner but could not find her trunk or any trace of the stolen articles.

Prisoner was acquitted.

Mary Brill and Ellen Conner were tried for receiving stolen goods. The evidence showed that a little son of Mrs. Brill stole $100 from a Mr. McKewan and took it to his mother and the prisoner. The prisoners claimed that the boy told them he had found the money in the street. The two prisoners, however, concealed the money and stoutly denied ever having received it until after they had been arrested. The boy was too young to be examined as a witness, but was privately questioned by His Honor. The evidence as to guilty knowledge was very conflicting, and the jury could not agree. The Court adjourned until this morning.

Friday, April 28—P. M.

There was a further decline of one ℘ cent. in Gold this forenoon, the speculation being weak, notwithstanding the large daily demand to pay into the Treasury for Customs. The market is, no doubt, influenced by the near approach of the May disbursements from the Treasury, for Gold Interest on the 5-20 United States Bonds. In addition to this, there was a dull feeling early in the day for Bills on London for Saturday's mail, at 109¼@109½ ℘ cent.; but at a later hour there was more inquiry for Bills, and the Bankers' rate quoted 109¼@109⅝ ℘ cent. for Gold. The price of Gold improved from 146⅜ to 147⅛ ℘ cent. The Importers are having a good trade this week, and are making preparations for further improvement in May and June, by the payment of Customs Duties not only on Merchandise recently arrived, but on withdrawals from Bond. The steadiness of Gold in the neighborhood of 150 ℘ cent. is evidently encouraging country as well as city Jobbers to increase their stocks on hand. The Domestic Commission men also report an improvement in Cotton fabrics and other home-made articles.

The Market for Money is quoted at from 4 to 6 ℘ cent. to the Brokers, on temporary loan, according to the anxiety of lenders to put out their balances at these rates. The general rule of the Street is 6 ℘ cent., except on Governments, which are carried at 5 ℘ cent. by the leading Brokers engaged in Government business.

The Stock Exchange reacted this forenoon on the Railway and Miscellaneous list, after the very large rise of the previous two days. There were some considerable realizations yesterday, on Erie Shares, at 84½@85 ℘ cent., and much doubt thrown to-day on the approval of the New-York Central Bill, by Gov. Fenton, and both these incidents affected the New-York, and by sympathy, the Western Roads. The reaction, however, was free from panic, and at the Second Board there was generally a steadier temper to the market. Among the Miscellaneous Shares, the demand continued active for Canton and for Cumberland, and Quicksilver, but at a reduction corresponding with the decline on the railways as compared with the best sales of yesterday.

The Government Gold-bearing Stocks yielded ⅛@¼ ℘ cent. from Thursday's advance, on a less active business. The market for 5-20s and 10-40s steady at the close of the day.

At 4 o'clock the following quotations were made, as compared with Thursday afternoon. There was a fresh stampede in Erie Shares after the Second regular Board broke up, and the price went down at the Broad-street Open Board of Brokers to 77½ ℘ cent. The other Railways sympathized, more or less, in this reaction on the leading speculative, and left off heavy. At the close there was rather more steadiness.

Mr. E. S. Munroe, an old member of the Stock Exchange, for twenty odd years in Wall-street, withdraws from the house of Messrs. Lockwood & Co. on 1st May, and opens an office as Stock Broker on his own account in New-street. See card in another column. Mr. Le Grand Lockwood, Jr., goes into the house of Lockwood & Co., at the same time.

Messrs. Muller, Wilkins & Co., will hold their regular auction sale of stocks and bonds to-morrow (Saturday), at 12:30 o'clock, at the Exchange Salesroom, No. 111 Broadway.

We learn that the amount of twelve months United States Certificates of 1864 to be paid off in May and June is nearly $50,000,000. As no new issues have been made since the close of the old year, and no further issues will be made, the paying off of the old Certificates will enhance the supply of Legal Tender Money waiting employment in the Popular 7-30 Loan, or in United States funded Stocks, or in the open market. The Certificates maturing hence to the close of 1865 amount to about $143,000,000, or a hundred millions less in circulation than last Fall. We may as well add, by way of answer to all foolish rumors respecting a present or prospective discrimination between Greenbacks and National Bank Currency, wherever payable, that the Government has the right to pay off the Certificates of Indebtedness, and all other debts, drafts or requisitions on the Treasury Offices or the Treasury Bank Depositories, in either Greenbacks or National Bank Notes, other than the Gold Interest pledged to the Funded Public Stocks of the United States. And all tax-payers have the like option, except for Custom Duties on Foreign Goods.

The day's business at the Office of the Assistant Treasurer was as follows: Total receipts, $2,187,517 77; including for Customs, $439,000; total payments, $2,287,325 87; on account of loan, $342,000; balance, $35,770,779 21.

Oats are dull and much lower, including Western at 79c.@81c.; Jersey and Pennsylvania at 78c.@80c.; Canada at 73c.@75c. ℘ bushel. The movements in Wheat in Milwaukee week ending with April 25, Messrs. Jones & Co. notice thus: "The Wheat market has been under the control of local operators during the past week, and prices have advanced about 5c. ℘ bushel. The high figures compel shippers to be lookers-on, there being no margin for profit between here and the seaboard. This state of things will doubtless continue until receipts become heavier. As yet the arrivals, though increasing, are quite moderate. The chief reason given for the wheat from the Mississippi arriving so slowly, is the unwillingness of the interior shippers to pay the high freights demanded. We suppose, however, that the transportation men or the shippers will concede some of their demands before long, and let the wheat come forward. We have had some beautiful weather this week, and hear that sowing is about completed. Navigation with the lower lakes has been resumed during the week, the first arrival from beyond the Straits of Mackinaw being the propeller Montgomery, on 21st inst. Lake freights are 1c. lower. Several charters have been made at 10c. on Wheat to Buffalo, and at the close, vessel-men are looking around for more shippers at this rate. Vessels for Oswego are offered at 16c. We quote No. 1 Spring Wheat in store, subject to 2c. ℘ bushel storage, at $1 20; No. 2 at $1 15. No. 1 Spring at to-day's rates could be laid down at New-York at about $1 53, exclusive of interest and commission. Receipts for past week, 52,291 bushels, against 158,299 bushels for same time last year. Shipments since opening of navigation, 28,500 bushels, against 720,303 bushels to same date last year."

SONS OF TEMPERANCE.

At the quarterly session of the Grand Division Sons of Temperance of Eastern New-York, held at the Hall of Union Division, No. 1, Harlem, on April 26, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, The ruthless hand of treason's assassin has robbed our land of a beloved President, and humanity of one of its noblest benefactors;

Resolved, That we, the Grand Division of the Sons of Temperance of Eastern New-York, unite our expressions of heartfelt grief with the grief of a bereaved people—that we discerned in ABRAHAM LINCOLN a shining example of the honors and usefulness which God bestows upon industry, frugality, temperance, rigid integrity, patriotism, and pure Christian principle.

Resolved, That we feel an honest pride in pointing to this, our late venerated President, as a consistent friend of Total Abstinence, both in his precepts and in his uniform practice. We commend his fearless fidelity to the principle of Temperance as a model for all his successors, and for all who are in authority.

Resolved, That henceforth our love for our country shall be more deeply rooted, our hated of wrong and oppression, in all their forms, more intense and constant, and our efforts for universal Temperance more active and efficient.

Resolved, That we tender to the family of our late President our heartfelt sympathies in this, their great affliction.

Resolved, That while we place on our arms the usual badge of mourning, we also devote our arms and hands and hearts anew to our long-tried and now victorious country. On the banner which bears the inscription, "Love, Purity and Fidelity," we write the words "Union, Justice, Liberty." Signed,

JOHN DAVIES, Grand Scribe.
JOHN N. STEARNS, G. W. Patriarch.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

GENERAL NEWS.

A private dispatch from St. Louis reports the explosion and sinking of the steamer Sultana on the Mississippi—place and date not given—and adds that a great many soldiers lost their lives.

President JOHNSON has postponed the day of humiliation and prayer, originally fixed for the 25th of May, to the 1st day of June, because the 25th was Ascension Day.

The Hamilton correspondent of the Toronto Leader, writing on the 26th inst., states that Gen. LEE has engaged apartments in the Royal Hotel in that city, where he has relations living.

The subscriptions to the Loan, yesterday, were $4,153,500. There were 2,900 persons who took the smallest sums.

It is Brig.-Gen. THOS. A. DAVIES, and not DAVIS, who has assumed the command of military affairs in Wisconsin.

Secretary SEWARD is doing very well, and his son is also rapidly improving.

LOCAL NEWS.

The Veteran Temperance Corps, organized April 16, 1865, and composed of persons who have not used intoxicating liquors as a beverage for a third of a century, held a meeting last evening in the Forty-eighth-street Methodist Episcopal Church.

JAMES McCAFFERY, a youth of ten years, fell from the Ninth-street pier, yesterday afternoon, and was drowned. The body was recovered, and taken to the parental dwelling, at No. 330 East Ninth-street.

Messrs. HOFFMAN & FANNING'S carpenter's shop, in the rear of No 338 East Ninth-street, was destroyed by fire at about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Loss on stock and building, $6,000.

The body of PHILIP MURTHA, a boatman, late of No. 139 Goerck-street, was found yesterday morning in the dock at the foot of Stanton-street. MURTHA had been missing three months.

At police trials yesterday, before Commissioners ACTON, BERGEN and McMURRAY, charges were entertained against Policemen CORLIN, of the Fifth Ward, and WATSON, of the Fourth.

The popular demand for the national 7-30 Loan is unusually active this week, as indicated by the average daily subscriptions, which are up to $4,255,315, or at the rate of over $25,500,000 a week. The daily sales thus far this week have been as follows: Monday, $4,275,650; Tuesday, $4,023,350; Wednesday, $4,162,000; Thursday, $4,560,300. The orders for the $50 and $100 notes of the Loan have averaged 3,335 a day. The daily average of subscriptions last week was $3,054,140, and the preceding week $3,655,208.

Government gold-bearing bonds were very sparingly offered yesterday and were in fair demand, mainly for permanent investment, but in part for shipment to Europe. All round lots tendered for sale were eagerly bought at the ruling prices, in anticipation of an early and decided rise. Later news from Frankfort and London was anxiously looked for. It was recognized that the Africa's advices indicated a radical change in English financial and mercantile opinion in our favor, and it was conceded that the foreign market value of our national gold-bearing bonds must be most beneficially effected by this change. It is seen that the prevalent conviction in England at latest dates thence was that the final triumph of our government is near, and that even those who had manifested the strongest faith in the rebel cause have become unmistakably despondent.

There was less activity in produce and merchandise yesterday. Prices of domestic produce generally favored buyers. Foreign merchandise was held quite firmly. The freight market was very quiet, and the few engagements were at such low rates that the brokers refused to give specific details.

The price of Gold was one ℔ cent. lower yesterday. U. S. Stocks less active and ½ ℔ cent. lower than on Thursday. There was quite a reaction in the Railway speculation. Erie about 78 ℔ cent. Money easy. Exchange 109½ for Gold.

Last night the market was much excited. Gold closed at 146⅛ after the call.

Johnston's Surrender.

The dilemma in reference to the rebel army of Gen. JOHNSTON is satisfactorily solved. The Lieutenant-General has sent official information to the War Department from North Carolina that JOHNSTON has surrendered the forces of his command on the basis agreed upon, on the 9th instant, for the surrender of the army of Gen. LEE. We need not say that this will be perfectly satisfactory to the country, as it assuredly is to the government.

The rebel forces embraced in this surrender include all that are in arms between the Southern border of Virginia and the Chattahoochee River. The Chattahoochee forms for a great distance the Western boundary of the State of Georgia; so that the territory covered, or rather uncovered, by this great surrender, embraces the States of North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida, or a distance of over five hundred miles from east to west. The reason, we suppose, that it did not extend an indefinite distance further, is that the Chattahoochee is the western boundary of Gen. JOHNSTON'S command. This shows that, unlike the Sherman negotiation of April 18, the present is strictly a military surrender, and that neither JEFF. DAVIS, BRECKINRIDGE, nor any of the civil rebel leaders had anything to do with it. The negotiation of the 18th, of which DAVIS was the dictator, covered the entire Confederate territory and secured his own safety.

The region between the Chattahoochee and the Mississippi includes the States of Alabama and Mississippi. Every important position in both these States is in our hands, and the only rebel troops in them are the few thousand fugitives who escaped from Mobile recently on its surrender, and who have probably been chased into chaos before this time by the cavalry of Gen. WILSON.

Thus, it can now be said that peace reigns over the entire South—if we except the single State of Texas. The great armies of the rebels are now all broken up, and every man of them is sworn to keep the peace. All the rebel arms, artillery, and munitions of war are in our keeping. Under these circumstances, there will be little difficulty in maintaining order and the national authority all over the South.

Secretary STANTON'S important order, issued on the 13th inst., providing for the reduction of the army, the curtailment of expenses, and the opening up of trade and commerce, can now very soon take actual effect.

A Class Revolution.

Our readers will bear in mind that we have from the beginning of the war urged that this struggle was essentially a struggle between a class—the slave aristocracy and the people. We have always maintained that only as this feature is considered both in legislation and executive action, can we hope for a permanently successful issue. It is a matter of hope and congratulation to us, and to all who take the deeper views of the contest, that President JOHNSON has from the beginning felt and acted on this idea. If his course be examined while he was upholding the government against tremendous odds in Tennessee, and his speeches at the time of his nomination as Vice-President, it will be seen that the prominent thought in his mind was that a base aristocracy, founded on slavery, who had long weighed on the poor and middle classes of the South, were now striving to overthrow all the franchises of the people on this continent, and were striking a blow at universal democracy.

In his speeches in Tennessee he appealed to the honest poor and laboring class against the traitorous rich. With the eye of a statesman, he saw then that the chief hope of our final victory in the rebel States lay in destroying the aristocracy and raising up the masses.

He himself, by a remarkable circumstance, represents at this time the position, and struggles, and capacity of the great Democratic classes of the South. He has felt "the cold shade" and heavy hand of a barbaric but able and desperate aristocracy; he has suffered untold wrongs from them; he has been the object of their boundless scorn and contempt; they have murdered his friends and children and destroyed his property; they hunted him from home and kindred; and though they offered him place and power to take part with them in their treason, they could never tempt or bribe him a hair's breadth from his loyalty and duty. He knows this base and treasonable class; these men who, having spent their lives in robbing the hireling of his wages, and having of necessity become hardened to every species of cruelty and brutality and dishonor, looking down on the honest and self-supporting poor, find it most natural to rob their country, to betray her honor, to torture and murder prisoners, to fire peaceful cities by stealth, to despise and oppress the laborers, to carry desolation over a nation for the sake of their mad ambition, and, finally, to murder by assassination where they could not overcome in battle. Mr. JOHNSON fully understands the cruelty, the dishonor, the boundless ambition, the unquenchable hate and the utter desperation of the Southern slave aristocracy. In his brief but trenchant speeches since his inauguration, he always distinguishes between the deluded and poor of the rebel States and the rich and powerful leaders.

The sketch of President JOHNSON'S policy, which SHERMAN'S extraordinary negotiations have called out, shows how clearly the dangers from this class stand before his mind. He is determined that the old treasonable and powerful class of slaveholders shall no longer control the South. They are to be rooted out to their lowest fibres. Their treasonable State Governments, forced and sprung upon the people, are not to be recognized. They are, of course, to be stripped of the iniquitous source of their power—their slaves; they are to be exposed to the pains, penalties and shame of treason, which means, to large numbers of them, poverty or banishment or death. Their public debts, whether of States or Confederacy, are to be wiped out, and a new class of loyal men—however small their number—is to form the nucleus of the future loyal State, and no others, unless repentant and loyal, are to have part in it. The President means to build up a new and loyal class from the poor whites and others who have been faithful, and to trust to immigration and a gradual change of the middle class to form a new community.

But the old are to pass away. An aristocracy without means is only contemptible. As a class they will lose their influence; some will emigrate, and in proud poverty abroad curse the Yankees and democracy; many have died already, and others will pay the penalty of their crimes on the scaffold. The bona fide slaveholding class probably did not, in the rebel States, number 300,000 in the beginning of the war; and of these only a portion were wealthy enough to be leaders—a small but able and courageous body. This class the revolution must grind to powder; and to this result the policy of the President will evidently lead.

The Surrender of Johnston—The Close of the War.

JOHNSTON'S surrender of his entire army leaves no rebel force this side of the Mississippi. KIRBY SMITH has a few thousand on the other side; but they have long been in a very disorganized condition, and will now disperse at once. We very safely assume that the last gun of this war has been fired.

This seems a very simple record, and yet how hard, we may say how impossible it is to realize its full significance. We look about us in this great metropolis and see no change. There are the same thronged streets as before; the same stir and bustle and thrift. We have lived far away from the sight and the sound of war, and the transition to peace strikes our senses hardly more than the transition from one busy hour to another. And yet what a different month of May from the last now breaks upon the woods and valleys and streams of the Wilderness and Spottsylvania. Where peace now reigns alone in blossom and in song, there the armies of the Potomac and Virginia, in one continued "red shock of battle blent," together strewed the field, and crowded the hospital, with the wrecks of fifty thousand men. What a contrast now to that high carnival of death in which the rifle proved more deadly than the cannon, in which men shot at each other with deliberate aim, or in sweeping volley, from amidst thickets of brushwood, from behind sheltering trees, from across narrow brooks—in which hundreds fell at a blow, and blows ceased not for hours, and the fire flashed less in jets than in sheets of flame, and the bullets raised a tempest from side to side, wherein nothing mortal could live, until at last the storm was exhausted by its fury, with its purpose unfulfilled. And yet all that was but month's work of a four years' war.

We should have all gone mad could we have adequately comprehended the full sum of the woes of this war. President LINCOLN, as we have been told, after the battle of the Wilderness had been raging some days, betook himself with a friend to the Opera, exclaiming "The people will wonder if they hear of it, but the truth is, I must have a change of some sort, or die." Complete serenity is the attribute of Omniscience alone, who is conscious of a perfect plan, and who sees the end from the beginning. But even the wisest here cannot combine composure with the knowledge, imagination and sensibility which mark the truly good and great. Faith, indeed, may do much to sustain them. They may find some solace in the trust that there is an angel in the fire—a blessing descending in the smoke of the sacrifice; a tranquil Providence sitting upon the highest circle of the darkened heavens; and a harvest of compensating good, sown in the blood-steeped furrow of the trembling earth. Religion and reason, the instincts bestowed by faith and the lessons learned of history, all enforce the belief that the world is as wisely governed as it is wisely made; that calamity may be beneficent; that even the sword has a mission; that deep-rooted wrongs can be torn up only by fierce tempests; that the seed of good must be nourished into tardy life by the experience of evil; and that even all the measureless suffering of this war is but the necessary price to pay for the preservation of country, the vindication of justice, the redemption of a republic and a race. All this is true, and and yet it is still a terrific ordeal for mortal flesh and blood. No people could ever abide it, were not the sensibilities—the powers of realization and sympathy—among the most limited of the faculties of human nature.

It is a privilege beyond all estimate that we are at last permitted to reckon this war among the things of the past. God grant that this fair continent may never again be reddened by the like of it—that the peace which we have now conquered shall be a perpetual security against rebellion and all internal violence. Foreign invasion can never happen to us. A wall of brass, reaching to the clouds, could not shield us from that more completely than will the memory of the American prowess displayed in this war. There will never be blood-stains here that are not made by our own rebellious hands. After the horrors which have been experienced, how can that be? It seems beyond the utmost limit of human madness.

Secretary Stanton.

There is no one member of the Cabinet about whom public opinion has been so surely, though gradually changing, as in regard to the Secretary of War. The faults which appeared in the beginning of his administration—his impulsiveness in public action, and his sometimes harsh treatment of individuals—are being forgotten in the splendor of his successes and the integrity of his administration. If Mr. STANTON is impulsive now, it is always on the side of liberty against oppression, or it is against some gigantic crime, or in his eagerness to throw his own tremendous force of character and mind into military movements which seem to him sluggish or hesitating. His acts of revolutionary energy and arbitrary power are not confined to punishing petty traitors, but to the arrest and punishment of more conspicuous criminals in peculiar crises of affairs. His prompt removal of Gen. BUTLER and his immediate renewal of the attack on Wilmington were grand and successful instances of his "revolutionary energy." The recent prompt, but most trenchant statement of the grounds of disapproval of Gen. SHERMAN'S negotiations, show Mr. STANTON'S intellectual force and his deep earnestness in the national cause in the best light. We believe the whole country felt a certain sense of relief and security, when that manifesto appeared, at the thought of two such vigorous hands at the helm as Mr. STANTON'S and Mr. JOHNSON'S.

But the highest glory of the Secretary of War, on the page of history, will be his remarkable powers of organization and the entire integrity of his administration.

When we call to mind what, for instance, the organization of the English campaign in the Crimea was, when the armies were only a few miles from a water base, and the problem was for the greatest naval power of the world to feed and clothe and medically care for 30,000 men; the inextricable confusion, the want of rations, of stores, clothes and medicine, the sufferings of those brave men from this most stupid want of business capacity in the officials, until the Crimean campaign became a spectacle to the world for its misery and stupidity, and then reflect that for four years Mr. STANTON and his officials have been feeding, clothing, arming and taking medical care of some 800,000 men each year, transporting them with great rapidity thousands of miles on the sea and the land, and that no instance has occurred of short supplies, or irregular transportation, or deficient clothing or arming, or (on any large scale) of a want of medical supplies, everything seeming to be just where it was needed, we must admit that somewhere in our military service there has been a great organizing brain.

More than this; never we believe were such vast sums of money spent so honestly and economically, so far as the department could control the expenditure. Contractors who have dealt with the Secretary and his immediate subordinates, will confess that very little has been made out of the government, either honestly or otherwise, in this war. And not the bitterest enemy of Mr. STANTON can ever charge him with the slightest taint of corruption or venality in his high office. Handling hundreds of millions every year, he has never incurred even the suspicion of appropriating a dollar to himself.

The Shenandoah—Extraordinary Conduct of the Australian Authorities.

The full history of the transactions between the pirates of the Shenandoah and the British authorities at Melbourne is now before us. We venture to say it supplies an illustration of "neutral" malice, imbecility and cowardice combined such as has not been witnessed during the whole of this war.

The Shenandoah put into the harbor of Melbourne on the 25th of January, having completed a cruise, during two months of which—from Oct. 29 to Dec. 29—she succeeded in capturing and destroying nine American merchantmen. On reaching Melbourne, WADDELL, the Commander of the Shenandoah, demanded the right of putting his vessel into the dock for repairs. This demand was at once complied with. And the local Commissioner of Customs was ordered by the Governor to examine what repairs were actually necessary, and report upon the time required to make them.

A commission was also instructed to supervise the work, so that nothing extra should be done—such as increasing the vessel's speed. The time allowed for the job was ultimately fixed at ten days. And the government slip was allowed to be used for the purpose.

It soon became evident, however, that WADDELL had other work on hand than that of repairing his ship, and the police authorities were advised of the fact that he had been engaged in recruiting British subjects for the rebel service. The head constable of the colony then ordered a force of two men to search the vessel; but they were resisted in the execution of their duty by the subordinate officer left in charge of the craft. This defiant proceeding seems to have momentarily roused some spirit in the authorities. And a force of fifty men were next called out to enforce the search. WADDELL, however, by a prompt application of cajolery and menaces, soon succeeded in compelling the Governor to countermand this order—the rebel pirate pledging his word that the search for British subjects on board should be instituted by his own officers, their honor (save the mark!) being further pledged to the delivery of any that might be found on board. The search resulted in a report that none were found. But the same evening on which this report was made, the police discovered and pursued a boat conveying four men from the Shenandoah—all of whom had been enlisted. Still, the authorities found it inexpedient to do anything more, even after this outrageous breach of faith, than ask WADDELL to take his ship out of the dock and proceed to sea—the time allowed him for refitting having meanwhile extended from ten to twenty-five days.

The terms in which the final request to leave was answered by WADDELL showed just the proper amount of contempt for the authority which the rebel had so successfully overawed. He promised to report the indignity he had suffered to his government, and a note from the British Commissioner, in answer to this threat, he returned unanswered.

It is a fitting corollary to these outrageous proceedings that a public meeting should have been held at Melbourne, denouncing the government for not treating Capt. WADDELL more courteously. And we can readily believe the report—extraordinary as it appears—that the pirate, when last seen, was lying off the coast a short distance from Melbourne, in wait for a number of merchantmen expected from Boston and New-York.

Surely this is a case so far out of the ordinary range even of the neutrality we have been accustomed to, as to demand special inquiry on the part of our government.

CABINET CHANGES.—A letter from the intelligent Washington correspondent of the Boston Advertiser, which we copy in another column, will reward perusal. It confirms what we had previously understood to be the fact, that the ill-timed demonstration made upon President JOHNSON for a reconstruction of his Cabinet, immediately after the murder of Mr. LINCOLN, did not succeed. The whole country was tranquilized and reassured by the semi-official announcement, made in our columns some days since, that no change whatever would be made in the Cabinet at once. It was generally felt that the nation had been sufficiently shocked by the assassination of the President, and that it would be unwise to add to the public excitement and apprehension by hasty revolutions in the political administration. President JOHNSON naturally and wisely preferred to postpone action upon so important a matter, and we have no doubt that, whenever the time shall come for such action, it will commend itself to prudent and sagacious men throughout the country.

THE CENTRAL RAILROAD BILL.—Gov. FENTON has vetoed the bill permitting the New-York Central Railroad Company to increase the rates of fare on their road to two cents and a half a mile. We cannot help thinking that in this he has not consulted the substantial interests of the State. The bill was very carefully guarded,—the time during which this increase of fare was permitted being limited to two years, and the dividends restricted to seven per cent. It is perfectly well known to all familiar with railroad matters, that this road, in common with nearly every other in the State, needs very extensive repairs; and it is equally well known that, at the present price of iron and everything else which enters into either the construction or the working of a railroad, it is quite impossible for this company to make the repairs and improvements required. The slight increase in fares which the bill proposed would have aided them materially in this matter, without imposing any sensible burden on the traveling public.

THE FAMILY OF MR. LINCOLN.—The movement to raise one hundred thousand dollars for the widow of Mr. LINCOLN is highly proper and deserves universal aid and coöperation. MARSHAL O. ROBERTS, of this city, has given $10,000 toward it, and there are many others who ought to follow his example. The family of President LINCOLN, who has fallen a martyr to his principles, and who died for his country as truly as did ever a soldier on the battle-field, is now under the guardianship of the nation. The country owes it to itself to provide for them amply and generously. We doubt not that the movement to receive donations for this purpose, if well organized, will be highly successful, though it would be eminently proper and becoming in Congress to vote each surviving member of Mr. LINCOLN'S family a liberal, though not extravagant, pension for life. No soldier ever earned a pension better.

RELIEF FOR OUR STREETS.—The Legislature has rather unexpectedly done one good thing in passing the bill for an underground railroad in this city. It is the only railroad bill which promises substantial relief for our overcrowded streets. There is not room enough on the surface to accommodate all who want to ride. A railroad in every street would not do it. Besides, the loss of time incurred in going the whole length of the city by horse-power is very great. Steam engines can be used below ground, and passengers can be carried from Fiftieth-street to Wall-street in fifteen minutes. We hope this road may be constructed as speedily as possible.

Musical.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—There is undoubtedly a strong Teutonic flavor about GOUNOD'S music—a local coloring peculiarly adapted to the splendid story which he so happily and powerfully illustrates. "Faust," for this reason, is generally heard to advantage when rendered by a German company, and this in spite of some alterations in the music, necessitated by translation and transposition of accent—as for instance in Margherita's opening phrase—prim, modest and demure in the original, but shorn of its fair proportions in the German versions. These, however, are trifles when weighed against the obvious and general adaptability of the music to the idiom of the German language. In some passages, indeed, this is so manifest that the preference must be given to it over either of the other two languages through which the work has been made so widely known. The best characteristics of the German version were certainly brought out last night in an unusually agreeable manner. We have rarely heard the work, in all general respects, better given. The artists were, without exception, in capital voice, and a rare and enjoyable unanimity prevailed—a desire to be good and conscientious. The cast was mainly the same as last season, when Mr. GROVER played the opera here. We note, however, in his artists a commendable degree of improvement. Mme. FREDERICI'S voice has become fuller, and is evidently more under her control. Its quality is as heretofore, exceedingly good. We should be glad if the lady would not display so much energy in her acting—especially in the window scene of the third act. A modest young woman communing with her thoughts in the chaste light of the moon does not fling her arms about so violently. We throw out this hint without desiring to detract from the general merit of Mme. FREDERICI'S performance, which indeed was great. Mme. DJIURA—a young artist who sang once or twice last season—gave a very acceptable rendering to the small but charming rôle of Siebel. Her voice also has notably improved. Signor TAMARO was the "Faust," (singing the words in Italian,) and was good. Of Herr HERMAN'S Mephistopheles it is unnecessary to speak. It has been fully accepted as one of the best personations on the stage. We must not forget to add a word of praise for Herr STEINECKE, a reliable and painstaking artist, who is always at his post. The orchestra and chorus were alike admirable. Indeed our recollections of last evening's entertainment are wholly agreeable.

There will be a matinée performance of "Martha" to-day, commencing at the usual hour.

CINDERELLA—THE CHILDREN'S PERFORMANCE—The Academy of Music never presented a more fairy-like spectacle than on Thursday, at the little play of "Cinderella," when 200 children appeared on the stage, and went through their parts to the immense delight of the audience. The performance is to be given only once more—next Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. It will be a beautiful celebration of the first of May for the children that attend it.

Gen. Lee Expected to Visit Canada.

Hamilton Correspondence of the Toronto Leader.

The Times announces, this evening (the 26th), that Gen. R. E. LEE has already engaged apartments at the Royal Hotel, but I learn that the visit will not be made. There is some ground both to believe and discredit the rumor of Gen. LEE'S visit to our city. That he has relatives here your correspondent is certain, but as to his visit "deponent sayeth not." Some curiosity is manifested by our people to see the great chieftain of the South, and it is to be hoped that the rumor may prove true.

DREADFUL DISASTER.

Explosion of a Mississippi Steamer—Fourteen Hundred Lives Supposed to be Lost—They are Nearly all Released Union Prisoners—A Terrible Responsibility Resting upon Somebody.

ST. LOUIS, Friday, April 28.

A telegram received by the military authorities from New-Madrid says that the steamer Sultana, with two thousand paroled prisoners, exploded. Fourteen hundred lives were lost.

SECOND DISPATCH.

CAIRO, Friday, April 28.

The steamer Sultana, from New-Orleans the evening of the 21st, arrived at Vicksburgh with boilers leaking badly. She remained thirty hours repairing, taking on 1,996 Federal soldiers, and thirty-five officers, lately released from Cahawba and Andersonville prisons. She arrived at Memphis last evening, and after coaling proceeded. About 2 A. M., when seven miles up, blew up and immediately took fire and burned to the water's edge. Of 2,106 souls aboard, not more than 700 will be recovered. Five hundred were rescued, and are now in the hospitals. Two or three hundred, uninjured, are a the Soldiers' Home. Capt. MASON, of the Sultana, is supposed to be lost. At 4 o'clock this morning the river in front of Memphis was covered with soldiers struggling for life. Many are badly scalded. Boats immediately went to their rescue, and are still engaged picking them up. Gen. WASHBURNE immediately organized a board of officers to investigate the affair. They are now at work.

No further particulars are received.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON

Special Dispatches to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Friday, April 28.

MARAUDING REBELS.

Scouts from Fredericksburgh report that that city and vicinity need the protection of the Government against rebel officers and soldiers, disbanded from LEE'S army, who are now marauding upon the provisions and property of the inhabitants. Young men belonging to respectable families, who have been in the army, swear they will not work for a living, and devote themselves to plunder. Application is to be made to-morrow to General AUGUR for a Provost-Marshal's establishment at Fredericksburgh to protect the citizens in their peaceful pursuits. The same thing will have to be done throughout Virginia. The citizens of Fredericksburgh seem to have plenty of specie and greenbacks, and purchase commodities brought up the Rappahannock, but in the country surrounding there is a lack of the necessaries of life.

HAMILTON, formerly editor of the New-Orleans Times, and for three years correspondent of the New-York TIMES. An able prospectus of the Republic appeared in the Whig of yesterday, and the first number is expected to appear on or before Monday, the 6th of May.

AFFAIRS IN ALBANY.

The Veto of the Central Railroad Fare Bill—The Session Nearly Closed.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

ALBANY, Friday, April 28.

Gov. FENTON has vetoed the Central Railroad Fare Bill. He communicated his veto message to the Senate at half-past one o'clock this afternoon. No intimation had been received that such a message was in preparation, and the news of its reception therefore produced a sensation. The document itself, though very quiet in its style, embodying in compact from the argument against the bill, is yet by far the most sensational article that has been written here this Winter. The Senate was very quiet while the message was read; but the circle of Senators has at no time presented a greater number of peculiarly expressive countenances, than on this occasion. When the reading of the message had been completed the President of the Senate announced the question for decision to be, whether the bill should pass notwithstanding the veto of the Executive. There was an attempt made to have this question laid upon the table, so as to give time for consideration; but this the Senate did not favor. The question then came on passing the bill over the veto, and the vote stood fourteen to seventeen; and the Central Railroad Fare Bill, the "big thing of the session; the measure which has caused a greater expenditure of eloquence than any other, and more managing outside; the measure which has damaged more reputations of members of the Legislature than all others combined, was declared to be finally lost. The Senate took it quietly and good-naturedly. They immediately went into Committee of the Whole on a bill providing for the preservation of wild geese and ducks on Cayuga Lake. There was a succession of pleasing and some rather brilliant jokes upon the geese and duck question, all having some sly reference to the defeat of the Central. Senator BEACH desired to know if there was no provision in the bill to protect gulls, as well as geese. This point was considered a good one by those who had not voted for the passage of the Central.

It is anticipated that the Legislature will reach final adjournment this evening, although the Senate has not yet adopted the resolution fixing the time. The main questions yet pending are such as may grow out of the New-York City Tax Levy. The Senate have passed upon these, and the bill in which they are embodied was sent to the Assembly this morning. When it was taken up there, it at once became evident that there would be much discussion in regard to it, if it was considered in Committee of the Whole. To save time, therefore, it was entrusted to a committee to report complete, and the Assembly took a recess of two hours, to allow the committee time to prepare a report. The committee has not yet reported.

The closing hours of the session are rather noisy especially in the Assembly. Important bills which have been lost are revived and pushed through rather easily during these last hours. Among the bills thus revived and passed are the Knickerbocker Gas Company bill, and the Pneumatic Railroad Company bill. The bill authorizing the erection of a new capitol in Albany was passed last evening. As I close my letter (3:30 o'clock P. M.) members of Assembly are offering bogus resolutions and enjoying a merry time in anticipation of a speedy conclusion of their labors.

The concurrent resolutions were then passed by a vote of 26 ayes.

ASSEMBLY.

Speculations About the Cabinet of President Johnson.

From the Washington Correspondent of the Boston Daily Advertiser

SHEFFIELD, Mass., Wednesday, April 26.

Within twelve hours after the death of Mr. LINCOLN, certain "friends" of Mr. JOHNSON, to the number of about twenty, met in an upper chamber in Washington for the purpose of reconstructing the Cabinet. That there was wine and good cheer around the board need not be said, for these are always present at political meetings in Washington. There were two corner-stones on which the new Cabinet, as all agreed, must rest, viz.: Radicalism and Gen. BUTLER. Whatever else should be represented in the Cabinet, that opinion or sentiment which, in the interest of the negroes, opposed Mr. LINCOLN's plan of reconstruction, must be represented; and, whoever else went into it, Gen. BUTLER must have a place. By 8 o'clock of that Saturday evening, the claims of rival men were all settled to the general satisfaction of this conclave of reconstructionists, and word was quietly circulated that there would be a change in the Cabinet within the course of a couple of months. The new Cabinet was to be constructed as follows: Secretary of State, Benjamin F. Butler; Secretary of War, Edwin M. Stanton; Secretary of the Navy, Henry G. Stebbins, of New-York; Secretary of the Treasury, Hugh McCullough; Secretary of the Interior, Jas. Harlan; Postmaster-General, John Covode; Attorney-General, D. K. Carter, of Ohio, at present Judge of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia. The programme also included the appointment of Ex-Senator Wilkinson, of Minnesota, as Commissioner of Indian Affairs, and of Mr. Arnold, lately Representative from Illinois, as Solicitor of the Treasury.

Whether any of the gentlemen whom it was proposed to remove from the Cabinet, or any of the gentlemen whom it was proposed to lift into the Cabinet, were consulted in reference to the matter, does not definitely appear, though indications favor such a conclusion. Judge CARTER and Mr. COVODE were in the city, I believe; and on the Sunday following Mr. LINCOLN's death, friends of Gen. BUTLER remarked very significantly that he had been sent for—being then in New-York City. The General made his appearance on Monday, sure enough, and indulged in a brief, concise, pointed speech, a trifle more uncompromising, even, than that he made on Saturday in New-York. It was frequently remarked in a quiet way that Mr. SEWARD had tendered his resignation, that Mr. STANTON had laid aside his supposed hostility to Gen. BUTLER, that President JOHNSON had come to a full understanding and would announce the new Cabinet in due time—say, by the 1st of May.

Will there, after all, be any immediate change in the Cabinet? I believe that depends upon the condition of Mr. SEWARD. It is plain that the overthrow of the armed power of the rebellion brings up questions affecting our foreign relations of such importance that their settlement cannot be entrusted to any mere acting Secretary of State, however able or intelligent. We must have the heart and brain, and will and knowledge and experience of a first-class man in the State Department, and that at no very distant day. I know no reason for supposing that Mr. SEWARD will either resign or be displaced if he is able within a month to resume active charge of his business. That he may tender his resignation in order that Mr. JOHNSON can have opportunity for choice, is probable enough—as it is probable enough that the President may already have signified to him that he desires him to permanently remain in the Cabinet. Whatever doubts may have once possessed the public mind respecting Mr. SEWARD's position with regard to the policy of the administration, these later days have proved that his views of expediency did not then materially differ from those of the President, and that his management of our foreign affairs was moulded upon the President's famous motto: "One war at a time." Late events have produced a kindly feeling toward Mr. SEWARD, and President JOHNSON will doubtless satisfy the great body of loyal men in retaining him in the Cabinet.

In the event of his retirement, who would be called to the State Department? Not Gen. BUTLER, I am very sure. The Cabinet was, for months at a time, during Mr. LINCOLN's Presidency, scarcely more than a name. He often took counsel privately with his Ministers, but Cabinet meetings for general consultation were more rare than under any previous President. There will be a change in this respect during Mr. JOHNSON's Presidency, I believe. One of the conditions precedent to frequent Cabinet consultations must be general unity of sentiment in support of the Presidential policy. This fact, without going into details, will keep Gen. BUTLER out of the present Cabinet, even if changes be made in two or three of its members. We scarcely have a man better fitted for the State Department than Mr. SUMNER, and there are some well-informed persons who think it might possibly be offered to him. However that may be, I doubt if he would accept it. The proffer would undoubtedly be something of a temptation, but Mr. SUMNER means to take a leading part in the settlement of the great reconstruction question at the next session of Congress. He will, of course, be the leader of those who make negro suffrage the foundation of the new Union. How numerous that party will be time must show; but any one who supposes it will not be strong and vigilant and wary, is doomed to some disappointment. Mr. SUMNER's position as the leader of that party, and as the head of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, will, I think, overbalance the Secretaryship of State if it is offered him within the next eight or nine months. CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS will be the first choice of very many persons as Mr. SEWARD's successor, in the event that he leaves the Cabinet, and the second choice of many more. It was even understood that the friends of Gov. ANDREW—such as appeared in Washington last week—would be content that New-England should be represented in the Cabinet by Mr. ADAMS in the State Department, though they justly believe that the honor of these States could not be intrusted to wiser hands than those of the Governor himself. There are some reasons for believing that the steamer of the 22d took out leave of absence for Mr. Adams, with invitation to return to this country as soon as possible. That he is called home to take a Cabinet place, I do not believe; that he is called home for use in possible emergencies, I regard as probable enough. The middle of May will not only probably settle the question of Mr. SEWARD's retention in the Cabinet, but also of Mr. ADAMS' return to this country.

GREAT MATCH FOR $2,000—VANDERBILT DEFEATED BY HARRY CLAY IN FIVE HEATS.

FRIDAY, April 27, match $3,000, mile heats, best three in five, in harness.

SUMMARY:

S. McLAUGHLIN named bl. s. Henry Clay	1	2	2	1	1
D. MACE named ch. s. Com. Vanderbilt	2	1	1	2	2

	Time—Quarter.	Half.	Mile.
First heat	38¼	1:14¾	2:35
Second heat	38	1:15	2:35¾
Third heat	40	1:19	2:38
Fourth heat	41	1:19	2:40
Fifth heat	40	1:19	2:40¼

This match was made almost on the spur of the moment. There was as little disappointment in not witnessing the contest between Mr. McGOLDRC's two horses against Mr. LANE's bay gelding. A good trot, however, came off that afternoon. During the contest the match of yesterday was made, and the interest expressed was more than could have been imagined. Speculation ran high upon the result; both horses undoubtedly were out of condition for the trial. They showed in tolerable trim on the track, Clay being considered rather inferior.

First Heat—Betting during the morning was $100 to $70 on Clay. After several vain attempts at scoring, it was reversed to $100 to $80 on Vanderbilt. When the word was given, Van took a lead of one length, but at the turn Clay took a strong lead of a length and a half, which he maintained to the quarter, passing which there was no alteration, when Van went up, made a bad break, and at the half mile Clay lead five lengths. Both up and down from that point up the home-stretch, Clay winning easily by a length and a half.

Second Heat—Betting $100 to $70, afterward $60 on Vanderbilt. In an even start, Clay on the inside, lead round the turn, and then took a decided lead of one length, when he broke, but was steadied without loss. On the back-stretch he went up again, but was got down cleverly. Three-quarters he increased his lead half a length. Up the home-stretch Van put on steam, and reduced the gap. At the distance, and making a gallant effort, was only defeated by half a length. The heat was justly decided in favor of Vanderbilt, in consequence of Clay's running propensities during the heat, which caused him to lead his adversary.

Third Heat—$100 to $30 on Vanderbilt. An even start. At the first turn, Clay took a decided lead, and at the quarter pole was three lengths ahead. Down the back-stretch Vanderbilt closed, and at the half mile reduced the gap to a length and a half. Vanderbilt still closing further at the three-quarter to one length, he trotting squarely. Clay showed signs of fatigue, but under the whip Clay won the heat.

Fourth Heat—$100 to 30 on Vanderbilt. After a good start Clay lead to the first turn and passed the quarter half a length, when Vanderbilt began to close. At the old stand they were lapped, and the half mile Vanderbilt took the lead, but then broke up badly, giving Clay a strong lead of three lengths, recovering himself he pushed Clay at the three-quarter pole, when he went off his feet again. Up the home-stretch Vanderbilt got down on his feet, and it was only on the perseverance of SAM. McLAUGHLIN.

Fifth Heat—$100 to 30. After passing stand Clay took a fair lead of half a length to the quarter. Down back stretch they were lapped. There was no material alteration to the finish, Clay winning the race.

MURDERS IN ELIZABETH.—The citizens of Elizabeth have been horrified by the discovery of a murder committed in a tenant-house on Morris-avenue, in that city. The victim is MARY ELIZABETH GLENNAN, who was strangled to death by her husband, JAMES GLENNAN, a laborer employed on the track of the New-Jersey Railroad. The particulars, as far as developed, are as follows: About 2 o'clock on Thursday afternoon, Mrs. MASTERSON, who lives in the same house, went up stairs to the room occupied by the GLENNANS, and saw there the body of Mrs. GLENNAN lying extended upon the floor, the face livid and swollen. She uttered cries of murder, which attracted the attention of Alderman THOMAS B. BUDD, who hastened to the house, and there saw the body of the murdered woman, the husband being present. Mr. BUDD made some inquiries of GLENNAN, and receiving unsatisfactory answers, he arrested him and lodged him in the county jail. A post-mortem examination was made by Mayor GRIER and Dr. J. S. GREEN, which resulted in the discovery of conclusive evidence that the woman had died by strangulation. Several bruises were found upon the left shoulder and under the right ear. Several clots of extravasated blood were found in various parts of the head, and eight rings of the trachea were fractured, showing that great violence had been used.

ARREST OF ANOTHER SUPPOSED MURDERER IN ELIZABETH.—Thursday, another examination was held at Elizabeth, in the case of the murder of FERGUS COLLINS, who was seen lying in a lot on Elizabeth-avenue, near Elizabethport, on the 27th of last August, and whose body was afterward found in a neighboring creek. One WM. GRADY, who enlisted in the army four days after the murder was discovered, was suspected of the crime, and has been indicted by the Grand Jury. Upon an application made by Gov. PARKER, he was delivered up to the authorities of Union County, by order of the Secretary of War. He stated that he was in company with a man named GEORGE DIXON, on the same night, whereupon DIXON was arrested, and, claiming a hearing, had an examination before Justice FAIRBANKS. The evidence showed that these men had been seen on the avenue on the night in question, and one of them was overheard to say: "That man will miss us." DIXON was fully committed to answer before the Grand Jury at the September term of court. It is believed a third party was concerned in the murder, but he has not yet been arrested.

THE VETERAN TEMPERANCE CORPS.—The members of the Veteran Temperance Corps, composed of persons who have abstained, for a third of a century or more from the use, manufacture, or sale of intoxicating liquors, met last evening in the Forty-eighth-street Methodist Church. Rev. Mr. BAKER presided, and introduced Dr. HOLTON, who read the constitution of the society, which was organized on the 16th of April, 1865. Dr. HOLTON made a brief address on the subject of temperance, and said that he had been informed by a member of Congress from Illinois, that if Mr. LINCOLN was living he would be eligible for membership in the society, which was a most cheering fact. The constitution was signed by several persons, and speeches were made by several gentlemen, when the meeting adjourned.

Why are GENIN'S dashing styles of Dress Hats for gentlemen like a series of popular resolutions? Because they are carried unanimously.

"Is that a Miller you have on your head?" remarked a gentleman to a well-known "lady'sman" on Broadway, the other afternoon. "A Miller, my dear fellow," was the reply, as the other took off his dashing Spring style to examine it, "of course not; don't you know the confounded moths don't make their appearance until after catterpillar time?" "Pshaw!" responded the first speaker, "I meant is your's a MILLER HAT—a tile of the new mode just introduced by MILLER & CO., No. 497 Broadway?" "Of course it is," said the squire of dames, "do you think a man of fashion would wear any other?"

Two or Three Colds in succession will, with many constitutions, securely establish the seeds of consumption in the system, thus converting what was originally a simple, curable affection into one which is generally fatal. Ordinary prudence, therefore, makes it the business of everyone to take care of a cold until it is got rid of—and intelligent experience fortunately presents a remedy in JAYNE'S EXPECTORANT, thoroughly adapted to remove speedily all coughs and colds, and one equally effective in the primary stages of consumption, asthma and bronchitis.

ÆSTHETICO-NEURALGICON,
DR. VON EISENBERG'S
NEW INVENTION
FOR THE CURE
OF THE MOST COMPLICATED
DISEASES OF THE ORGANS OF SIGHT,
HEARING,
AS WELL AS CHRONIC CATARRH,
DISEASED THROAT,
AND ANY DISEASE WHERE THE MUCOUS MEMBRANE IS DESTROYED OR IMPAIRED.

As the meaning of the name given by Dr. VON EISENBERG to his new Invention may not be easily comprehended, we (the New-York Evening Express) give the following explanation of its uses for the better understanding of the general sufferer:

is derived from the Greek word Aisoptikos, which, in its literal acceptation, signifies pertaining to the senses the theory or philosophy of tastes, the science of sensations, or that which explains the cause of mental pain or pleasure. Neuralgicon is a compound of the two Greek words, neuron, a nerve, and logas, a discourse with the suffixecon. The meaning conveyed by the term is, that it is an instrument or machine devised on philosophical principles with a thorough knowledge of the nervous system.

In describing the matter more at length to show its uses, that it might be better understood by the general sufferer, we give a simpler explanation. The nervous system is the source of many diseases.

All physicians admit this, and all profess at least to be able to apply a remedy. The Allopathic, Homœopathic and Hydropathic, by prescribing opiates, anodynes, &c., may, and do, alleviate the pain arising from impaired or diseased nerves, but this does not restore the nerve. It is only temporary relief—a relief, too, to some one nerve at the expense of the entire system. The Æsthetico-Neuralgicon of Dr. VON EISENBERG not merely allays the irritation, but restores the nerve to its normal condition. The Doctor's theory is, that each nerve has a specific office, and has its own peculiar susceptibility. Thus, for example, the nerve of vision is insensible to touch, and, on the other hand, the nerve of touch is insensible to light, and so on through the whole system. The great excellence of this æsthetical instrument is, that it can be applied not on guess-work principles, which are no principles at all, but that it can be applied with accuracy, and certainty to any nerve or nerves that are weakened or impaired, to the different nerves of motion, or sensation, to the eye, the ear, on the touch, as in paralysis.

To those, therefore, who are in any way afflicted with loss of sight or hearing, with catarrh, bronchitis, chest or lung diseases, we earnestly suggest a visit to the consulting apartments of Dr. VON EISENBERG. There he will be speedily made to know the possibility of a cure in even complicated cases, and thus be encouraged to proceed until he is discharged thoroughly renovated and cured.

The reader, on perusing what we have here presented him, touching the beauty, complexity, costliness, touching the various uses to which the Æsthetico-Neuralgicon can be applied, may be induced to believe that in the warmth of our commendations we have exceeded the sober truth as to its utility; but we know we have not exceeded the limits of common sense in our description. We care not how prejudiced any one may be against it, he cannot, when it is thoroughly explained to him—and that the inventor is prepared to do at any time to those who call upon him—but be convinced it is all that is claimed for it, namely, the most perfect mechanical contrivance for the exhibition of spiritualized and etherealized medical preparations now in existence. He will even confess, if he be justly minded, that in many respects it is destined to bring about an entire revolution in certain departments of science, and that it is what its inventor, with reason holds, an apparatus that will do more to mitigate human suffering than anything that in all the past to this time, has been afforded to the world.

—New-York Evening Express, Sept. 28, 1864.

NEW TESTIMONIALS.
Catarrh Cured.

LINCOLN HOSPITAL, WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 1.

I have been for several years past afflicted with chronic dry catarrh, which a year ago became so bad that my hearing threatened to leave me altogether. My throat became greatly affected. There was a constant roaring in my head, which, with the other symptoms, was always greatly aggravated by the slightest "cold." Dr. Von Eisenberg commenced treating me a year ago, and has continued to treat me at long intervals since. I am happy to state that the treatment of Dr. Von Eisenberg has produced a constant improvement, so that my hearing is almost perfectly restored. My nostrils are free from inflammation, and my general health is so much improved that I look for its permanent restoration, and that speedily, as a fixed fact. I do cheerfully recommend all persons suffering from catarrhal affections to apply to Dr. Von Eisenberg for treatment, feeling assured that with proper opportunity he will effect a cure.

JAMES T. FERRIE, Captain U. S. A.

I was completely deaf for several years, and hearing of Dr. Von Eisenberg's great reputation in restoring the hearing, I called on him, and in one operation, to my great astonishment and excessive pleasure, I now hear perfectly well. I came into the Doctor perfectly deaf, and hear as I never expected to do. This skill is unrivaled.

CHARLES CHAPPELL,
Washington Market.

NEW-YORK, Oct. 5, 1864.

AN EXTRAORDINARY RESTORATION OF SIGHT.

I, LAWRENCE GRENNA, of No. 128 East 36th-st., New-York City, have been suffering from blindness of the left eye for a considerable period. The eye was continually in a state of great inflammation, from which the good eye became affected, and, indeed, my general health was greatly injured by it. Hearing of Dr. Von Eisenberg's great reputation, and as everyone said mine was a hopeless case, I called on the Doctor, who, after examining me, undertook my case, and within a fortnight I found myself almost completely cured. It is now a month since I placed myself under Dr. Von Eisenberg's treatment. I am happy to be able to state that the inflammation is entirely gone, so that I see perfectly with both eyes, added to which I am in good health, a blessing I have not enjoyed since I was blind. I do conscientiously and gratefully swear to the above statement, in a Court of Justice at the City Hall of the City of New-York, the 10th day of October, 1864.

LAWRENCE GRENNA.

Sworn before me this 10th day of October, 1864.

OFFICE OF THE COMMISSIONERS OF PUBLIC CHARITIES AND CORRECTION, NEW-YORK, April 25, 1865.

AT A SPECIAL MEETING OF THE COMMISSIONERS OF PUBLIC CHARITIES AND CORRECTION, held at their office, No. 1 Bond-st., this day:

Present—Commissioners Nicholson, Bowen and Brennan, Commissioner Bowen in the chair. Commissioner Nicholson presented the following preamble and resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, This Board have learned with unfeigned regret the death of DOCTOR VALENTINE MOTT, of this city, and from his long connection with this department, and the great respect entertained for his professional and private worth, deem it appropriate to express the sentiments of their consideration of his great ability and regret for his loss; therefore, be it

Resolved, That in the services of DOCTOR MOTT, during the long period of his connection with the Medical Board of Bellevue Hospital as Consulting Surgeon for upward of fifteen years, the inmates of the Charitable Institutions under charge of this Board, have been enabled to receive the benefits, gratuitously given, of his great medical and surgical experience, at all times and under all circumstances; and by his professional ability, judgment, skill and advice, their sufferings have been ameliorated, with that kindness and sympathy which marked his character while attending the bed of sickness and of pain.

Resolved, That his enlarged views on medicine and surgery, and the estimation in which he was held by the civilized world, eminently entitle him to the appellation of "Father of the Profession," and his demise will be greatly felt, particularly by those who in their early career looked to him for that aid and assistance which was his pleasure to grant.

Resolved, That we deeply sympathise with the family of the lamented deceased, and sincerely express our condolence for the loss they have sustained.

Resolved, That this board will attend the funeral of the deceased at the Church of the Transfiguration, East 29th-st., near 5th-av., on SUNDAY next, at 2 o'clock.

Resolved, That these proceedings be entered on the minutes of this board; that a copy be transmitted to the family of the deceased, and published in the papers of this city.

COAL AT COST.
CONSUMERS' BENEFIT COAL COMPANY.
SHARES, $10.

Each share entitles the holder to one ton of coal per year, at the cost of mining, transportation and delivery, which is now about $8 per ton; also to a share of the profits on the sale of coal produced beyond the quantity supplied to shareholders.

Those who buy for investment can have the coal they will be entitled to sold for their benefit, and receive the proceeds over the cost in cash.

Investment in this stock is not a risk, for anthracite coal lands are rapidly rising in value.

Ten wells are now going down on the company's property, in the richest portion of the famous Sugar Creek Valley. There is room for 5.0 more.

The trustees will refrain from lengthy advertisement of the prospects of the SUGAR CREEK PETROLEUM COMPANY. THE STOCK IS NOT WATERED. The projectors depend for their profits solely on a RISE IN ITS MARKET PRICE.

But a few thousand shares will be sold, and these on the only honest basis, viz., AT THEIR PAR VALUE.

The company's property is worth more than the entire capital stock. The latter is so small, indeed, that even a ten-barrel well will pay regular monthly dividends.

Has sufficient testimony to convince the most incredulous of his entire success in this branch of practice. Terms are no cure no pay, which should enlist public confidence.

THOUSANDS ARE TIMELY SAVED BY Dr. WARD'S skillful and improved treatment.—Private diseases cured in the shortest possible time by Dr. WARD & CO., No. 61 Franklin-st., near Broadway, without the use of mercury, loss of time or change of diet. Dr. WARD, from the hospitals of London, Paris and Edingburgh, is the discoverer of the only certain and reliable remedies for diseases of a private character. In 28 years practice he has cured more cases of Secret Diseases and Wrong Treatment than all others combined. I can and will cure you in less time and at less expense than any other can or will, and those who have been robbed of their money and health, call; it will take but little money and time to restore you. If you have been unfortunate, call at once. By his special experience in this much neglected branch of medical science, he is enabled to guarantee a cure in the most complicated cases. Involuntary emissions stopped in a short time. Sufferers from Impotency, or loss of sexual power, restored to full vigor in a few weeks, permanently and speedily cured by a new treatment. Persons at a distance failing to receive prompt treatment elsewhere, may get a permanent cure effected by writing a full diagnosis of their case, addressed to Dr. WARD, No. 61 Franklin-st. Call, send, or write.

HOTELS.

GRAND HOTEL DE LA PLACE DU PALAIS ROYAL,
NO. 170 RUE DE RIVOLI, PARIS.
CHAPUS, Proprietor.

The attention of the American traveling public is particularly invited to this hotel, as offering especial inducements for their patronage. Its position in the Rue de Rivoli, opposite the palace of the Louvre, and central to the principal theatres, the opera, omnibus lines and coaches, renders it most eligible for those visiting Paris, for either business or pleasure. The American can here find the comforts and conveniences of an American first-class hotel, for the reasonable consideration of 15 francs ($3, including wine) per day, with no charges for extras, so universal in European hotels, and so especially annoying to the American traveler. Arrangements may be made in advance by letter or otherwise. For further particulars, address J. F. TROW, City Directory Office, No. 50 Greene-st., New-York, where a view of the hotel may be seen.

NEW-YORK HOTEL.

The proprietor, believing that the comfort and convenience of his guests will be greatly increased by changing from the old table d'hote to the restaurant system, has determined to adopt the latter on the 1st of May next.

By establishing a restaurant, equal in every respect to any in this country, and employing all the means in his power to make it compare favorably with the most celebrated in Europe, he feels confident the New-York Hotel will continue to hold its well-known reputation as a home for gentlemen and families.

THE ST. ALBANS RAIDERS.

JUDGE SMITH'S DECISION REVIEWED AND CONDEMNED.

From the London Times, April 14

The elaborate decision of four Canadian Judges in the "Lake Erie Case" has been followed by one of an opposite tenor in that of the "St. Albans Raiders." The extradition of these persons on the charge of robbery has been refused by Judge SMITH, but they have been remanded, on the application of the prosecution, to answer another charge of assault with intent to murder. That issue, however, can hardly be determined by the same judge on principles different from those laid down in the judgment already delivered, and unless the prisoners should be convicted of an offence against the municipal law of Canada, there is reason to fear that they may escape justice altogether. We feel no scruple in openly deprecating such a result Whatever the legal obstacles to their punishment, their avowed acts were absolutely lawless, and a flagrant violation of our neutrality. Having sought an asylum in Canada, they crossed the frontier to Vermont in small parties, pillaged the Bank of St. Albans, fired the public buildings, used deadly weapons against all who resisted them, and fled back into Canada with their plunder. The unjustifiable order issued by Gen. DIX, and afterward withdrawn, may have diverted the public mind for a time from these facts, but it cannot alter their nature. The demand for extradition was made in due course, and proceedings were promptly taken upon it, but the defendants pleaded for time to obtain evidence from Richmond. This request was granted, and the hearing postponed for a month, at the end of which they were discharged by Judge COURSOL on a technical point connected with the warrants for their apprehension. The sequel is well known; the Canadian Government instituted a new prosecution, and the judgment reported in our American intelligence of yesterday confirms, on different grounds, the view taken by Judge COURSOL.

Some degree of attention is necessary in order to disentangle the material rationes decidenti in this judgment from the many irrelevant passages which encumber it. Judge SMITH is clearly of opinion that a robbery within the State of Vermont, or what would have constituted a robbery if committed in Canada, was brought home to YOUNG and his associates. The defence, and the only defence, was that this robbery was divested of criminality by virtue of its being committed under the authority of the Confederate Government. This, of course, raised the question so fully discussed in the case of ANDERSON and that of the Gerrity—whether a magistrate, adjudicating upon a demand for extradition, is at liberty to go beyond the prima facie aspect of the crime, and to hear evidence in special justification of it. Judge SMITH held that he was, and proceeded to deal with the charge on this assumption. He argued that the production of a commission from the government of a State recognized by Great Britain as a belligerent covered everything done under it, and that whereas an act cannot be at once private and public, a municipal offence and a national wrong, the raid upon the St. Alban's Bank did not fall within the scope of the Extradition Treaty. Now, without entering into any subtle examination of the general doctrine that a commission is conclusive against a charge of murder or robbery, we cannot but see that a great deal turns on the character of the commission. We have not the advantage of having all the facts and documents before us; but there are expressions of Judge SMITH himself which suggest many doubts to our mind. He does not go so far as to say that a bona fide commission directly authorizing the raid was produced in court but rather seems to imply that it may be inferred from circumstances. Such a commission, had it existed, would surely have been forthcoming in the first instance, or at least after communication with Richmond had been allowed for this very purpose. The judge, indeed, states that YOUNG, after residing three or four months in Toronto, had gone to Richmond and "received a commission," but was it a commission empowering him to do what he did in defiance of international law? We are not without a precedent in point, for BURLEY, the leader of the Lake Erie raiders, actually produced two certificates, the one from Mr. MALLORY the other from President DAVIS, both of which were set aside for the very reason which we have suggested. The latter was a retrospective sanction of his enterprise as a legitimate operation of war, but indicated that he was positively directed to abstain from any violation of neutral rights. If YOUNG'S "commission" was worded in the same manner, even though it was prospective, it could avail him little upon any supposition, but we are really without proof that he had any written authority to show. If he had, another and more serious question arises—the question whether a neutral State can, with a due regard to its own honor, take cognizance of a commission which cannot be executed without a gross insult to itself. Let us assume that President DAVIS expressly authorized Lieut. YOUNG to collect a marauding party in Canada, to make that colony the basis of his operations, and to retreat thither with his spoils. Are we to accept the reasoning of Judge SMITH, and acquiesce in the position that "the moment the act is acknowledged to be a national one all private responsibility ceases?" It is easy, no doubt, to imagine cases in which an extreme application of the contrary rule might work great injustice. Any military officer, for instance, honestly carrying out his orders, might be hung as a malefactor, unless protected by the privilege of subordination. But then in order to claim this privilege, a man ought at least to be engaged in legitimate warfare, even though he should exceed his instructions. An expedition alike unlawful in its inception and in its execution is a very different thing, and it is for jurists to consider whether Judge SMITH is correct in declaring broadly that "in no sense can a violation of neutrality destroy the belligerent character." Certainly one of the arguments employed by the learned judge does not add to the weight of his conclusion. Because Gen. DIX ordered his soldiers to shoot down the plunderers, it does not follow that they were not robbers in the eye of the law. We have nothing to do with Gen. DIX's impressions, and there is something ludicrous in supposing that the legal status of the prisoners could be affected by them.

It would be well if the judgment had stopped here, for the construction of extradition treaties in times of war is a task which has perplexed the most eminent judges both in England and America, and upon which many opinions are tenable. Unfortunately, however, Judge SMITH allowed himself to launch out into topics upon the introduction of which there can be no two opinions. What could be more gratuitous, and therefore what more improper, than to denounce the policy of surrendering political offenders, when the prisoners were not arraigned for any political offence, but on a simple charge of robbery? What could be more extra-judicial, not to say unjudicial, than to express a conviction that the South had risen in support of its political rights? We are quite unable to see what good end could be served by importing into the case the distinction between a rebellion and a civil war, or protesting against flying in the face of the Queen's proclamation "to suit the political purposes of the North," or by predicting that Great Britain would be required to pay for all the damage done by the Alabama and her consorts. We are not aware that the validity of a Confederate commission for any purpose that would be justified by a Federal commission has ever been disputed. No one has doubted, because no one can doubt, that a Canadian Court is bound by the Queen's recognition of the Confederacy as a belligerent Power, or that acts of war performed in its legitimate service are not criminal acts. To harp on these truisms with emphatic allusions to the domineering spirit of the United States strikes us as purely mischievous, and if the close of the judgment is faithfully reported by our Toronto contemporary it is open to still graver exception. The Judge actually appears to maintain that the Extradition Treaty having been construed, in a single instance, by an American court, in a way which he considers to be erroneous, is no longer binding on this country as the other contracting party. Such a sentiment is really so monstrous that we cannot believe it was propounded by a Canadian Judge; but there is quite enough in the general tone of the judgment to make us regret that it was received with tumultuous applause. Acquittals are always popular, and there may be a certain generous sympathy for men whose alleged crimes were inspired by patriotic motives, and devoid of a felonious intent. But the avowal of political feelings is not consistent with the judicial exposition of the law, as Judge SMITH himself pointed out in the early part of his judgment, and the cheers which he earned by the exhibition of these feelings on the judgment seat will find no echo in this country.

THE PIRATE SHENANDOAH.

FURTHER PARTICULARS—CORRESPONDENCE WITH THE AUSTRALIAN GOVERNMENT.

We have further particulars respecting the proceedings of the Government of Victoria in the case of the Confederate cruiser Shenandoah, which arrived in Hobson's Bay on the 25th of January. When she came to anchor, Capt. WADDELL, her Commander, requested permission to refit and take in coals, and what followed is thus stated by the Melbourne Argus of the 23d of February.

In the very early part of the correspondence the government intimated through the Commissioner of Trade and Customs—who, instead of His Excellency the Governor, maintained relations with Capt. WADDELL—that a commission would be appointed to supervise the repairs, lest anything should be done to increase the ship's speed, or add to her armament. To this Capt. WADDELL assented, and, after some delay, owing to the difficulty of the investigation, it was found that the outer stern-back and composition castings of the propeller shaft were entirely gone, so as to render it necessary for the vessel to be placed on the patent slip. About this time, and in answer to a hint from the government respecting the need of an early departure, Capt. WADDELL addressed the government thus, in one of his letters: "I am extremely anxious to get the Shenandoah to sea. The procrastination by the parties employed under His Excellency the Governor's permission for the necessary repairs to this ship seems to me unnecessary; and if I appeal to His Excellency the Governor for further instructions to those employed to hurry up the work on this ship, I hope His Excellency the Governor will see it in the spirit of a law-abiding man, and one impatient to be about his country's business." The government, by their action, appeared to admit the necessity of the delays, and not till twelve days after the ship had been in port asked that a day should be named for her departure. Capt. WADDELL again replied that the delays were caused by the difficulty of getting the vessel on the slip, and the notorious effects of some severe gales, which once caused the Shenandoah to get adrift, and nearly occasioned very serious damage. These reasons were apparently admitted to be good; and eventually, on the 14th of February, Capt. WADDELL announced to Mr. FRANCIS that he expected to get to sea by the Sunday following. Meanwhile, as time went on, it was generally understood that the American Consul, urged by more than one American merchant in Melbourne, was striving his utmost to get the authorities to interfere with the vessel; and as a few of the ship's crew had deserted, their testimony was said to be used to influence the government. On February 13, a police-inspector presented himself on board the ship, as she lay on the patent slip, with a warrant for the arrest of a man named "CHARLIE," said to be a British subject enlisted in the Confederate service, and concealed in the Shenandoah, which was known to be short of men. Capt. WADDELL was away, and the officer in charge refused to allow the vessel to be searched. Next day, Mr. BEANEY and Mr. Superintendent LYTTELTON (his superior officer) came on board again, with the warrant as before, which they desired to execute. Capt. WADDELL received them courteously, but declined to allow them to search the ship, intimating that it was as much as his commission was worth to allow his flag to be so disgraced. He also gave his word of honor, on the faith of an officer and gentleman, that he had shipped no one, nor enlisted any person for service, since his arrival, and that, in fact, no such person was or could be on board. The next event that occurred took place that very afternoon, the vessel being still on the slip. About fifty armed policemen entered the slip-yard, excluded all the workmen, and practically stopped the works and prevented the launch. The instructions given to the police will be best described in the following telegram:

Telegram from Mr. F. C. Standish, Chief Commissioner of Victorian Police, to Mr. Beaver, Police Inspector, stationed at Williamstown

I have to direct that you communicate with Mr. CHAMBERS, the lessee of the patent slip, that the Governor in council has given directions that he and all other British subjects in this colony at once desist from rendering any aid or assistance, or perform any work, in respect to the said classed Confederate ship Shenandoah, or in launching the same. You will at once proceed with the whole of the police force at your disposal to the patent slip, and prevent, at all risks, the launch of the said ship. Superintendent LYTTELTON and 50 men, also 50 of the military, proceed at once to Williamstown, telegraphing anything that may occur direct to me.

Tuesday, 14, 1865. F. C. STANDISH.

The military—fifty men of the Royal Artillery—started, but were countermanded. When affairs were at this stage, Capt. WADDELL received a letter from Mr. FRANCIS on behalf of the government, charging him with having refused permission to execute the warrant, and calling upon him to reconsider his determination, pending which the permission granted to repair and take supplies was suspended. Capt. WADDELL at once replied that the execution of the warrant had not been refused, but only permission to "search" the ship, whose decks represented the majesty of the flag that flew over it. He added, moreover, that the shipping articles had been exhibited to show that no one had shipped while the vessel was in port, and that he had ordered two commissioned officers to search the ship, but they had found no strangers. He concluded, by entering in the name of his government, his solemn protest against any obstruction that would cause the detention of his ship. The day's proceedings were closed by the Captain giving orders for the launch of his ship early next morning. At a few minutes after nine P. M. on that evening the police, who were stationed all round the vessel and within a very few yards of her, saw four men come down the gangway into a boat alongside. The water police close by followed this boat, which was rowed swiftly away, but the end was that the four men were arrested on shore, and subsequently identified by some deserters as men whom they had seen concealed on board, one being the identical "Charlie." Next day they were brought before a magistrate, and remanded. Meanwhile, on Wednesday morning, Captain WADDELL, finding that the launch of his ship, which was securely fast on the patent slip, was prevented by the order of the government, wrote at once to Mr. FRANCIS, declaring his vessel to be seized, and asking if the government approved of this. At 1:45 o'clock on the same day, the Governor, by proclamation, revoked the prohibition of the launch, and a letter from Mr. FRANCIS to Capt. WADDELL intimated that as it was reported that the safety of the ship was endangered by her position on the slip, the suspension of the permission to British subjects to assist in the launch was withdrawn. In consequence, the ship was launched the same evening. Late at night Capt. WADDELL received the following communication:

CUSTOM-HOUSE, MELBOURNE, Feb. 15, 1865.

SIR: I am directed by His Excellency the Governor to further acknowledge your communications of the 14th and 15th inst., in which, alleging that the vessel under your command had been seized, you ask whether the seizure is known to His Excellency the Governor, and if it meets his approval. I am to inform you, in reply, that this government has not directed nor authorized the seizure of the Shenandoah. The instructions to the police were to see that none of Her Majesty's subjects in this colony rendered any aid or assistance to, or performed any work in respect of, your vessel during the period of the suspension of the permission which was granted to you to repair and take in supplies, pending your reply to my letter of yesterday's date, in regard to a British subject being on board your vessel, and having entered the service of the Confederate States, in violation of the British statute known as the Foreign Enlistment Act, and of the instructions issued by the Governor for the maintenance of neutrality by Her Majesty's subjects. In addition to evidence previously in possession of this government, it has been reported by the police that about 10 o'clock last night four men who had been in concealment on board the Shenandoah, left the ship, and were arrested immediately after so leaving by the water police. It appears from the statements of these men, that they were on board your vessel both on Monday and Tuesday, the 13th and 14th inst., when their presence was denied by the commanding officer in charge, and by yourself subsequently, when you declared that there were "no persons on board this ship except those whose names are on our shipping articles." This assertion must necessarily have been made by you without having ascertained for yourself by a search that such men were not on board, while at the time you refused permission to the officer charged with the execution of the warrant to carry it into effect. Referring to that portion of your communication of the 14th instant, in which you inform His Excellency the Governor "that the execution of the warrant was not refused, as no such person as the one therein specified was on board," as I am in a position to state that one of the four men previously alluded to is ascertained to be the person named in the warrant. I am also to observe that, while at the moment of the dispatch of your letter, it may be true that these men were not on board the Shenandoah, it is beyond question that they were on board at the time it was indited, your letter having been dispatched at five minutes before 10 o'clock. It thus appears plain, as a matter of fact, that the Foreign Enlistment Act was in course of being evaded. Nevertheless, as the only person for whose arrest a warrant was issued has been secured, and as you are now in a position to say, as "commanding officer of the ship, and on behalf of your government, whose faith is pledged by the assurance, that there are no persons on board this ship except those whose names are on the shipping articles, and that no one has been enlisted in the service of the Confederate States since my arrival in this port." His Excellency the Governor has been pleased to revoke the directions issued yesterday, suspending permission to British subjects to aid and assist you in effecting the necessary repairs and taking in supplies. I am to add, it is expected you will exercise every dispatch, so as to insure your departure by the day named in your first letter of yesterday, viz., Sunday next. I have, &c.,

JAS. G. FRANCIS.

To this Capt. WADDELL replied next day by thanking the Governor for his observance of the rights of belligerents, denying that the men arrested formed any part of his complement, but were stowaways, detected after a further search, and at once ordered over the side, and declaring that in no way could he be accused of an evasion of the Foreign Enlistment Act. He ended thus, addressing himself to Mr. FRANCIS: "In conclusion, sir, allow me to inform you that I consider the tone of your letter remarkably disrespectful and insulting to the government I have the honor to represent, and that I shall take an early opportunity of forwarding it to the Richmond government." This closed the correspondence between Capt. WADDELL and the government. A letter was sent by Capt. WADDELL to the Attorney-General, asking what was regarded by the Crown as British waters; but only an informal reply, written by a clerk, and stating that no reasons had been given why the information should be afforded, was received. This "reply" Captain WADDELL handed back to the messenger, with the simple answer that it had better be taken back, with his compliments. It must be added that the four men arrested were brought up before the Williamstown Police Court on Thursday. Four deserters from the Shenandoah, one a negro, gave evidence against them; and it was remarked that the witnesses all sat together in court, and gave their evidence against each prisoner one after the other, without any hindrance to their communications with each other, or to their hearing each other's testimony. The tenor of their evidence was that men had been locked up in the forecastle of the Shenandoah when visitors were on board, being let out when the ship was clear; and that several of the officers had themselves told "Charlie," who wore Confederate uniform, to keep out of the way. No one appeared for the prisoners in any way. One, being an American citizen, was discharged, and the other three committed to trial. The public feeling in Melbourne on these matters ran very strong; and a crowded public meeting called together in the middle of the day, strongly reprehended the government for their seizure of the ship. This sentiment was considerably heightened when the terms of Mr. FRANCIS' last letter were made known; and of course the subject became the principal topic of conversation when next day the whole correspondence between Capt. WADDELL and the government was published in the Argus, together with the declarations from a number of the officers directly contradicting the testimony of the four deserters. One of these contradictions set forth that the negro deserter was the only person ever kept in the forecastle while the ship was in port, and that for drunkenness and insults to visitors. An address to Capt. WADDELL, expressive of regret at the annoyances to which he had been subjected as a belligerent obtaining his undoubted rights, of belief in his observance of the neutrality, and in his unsullied reputation as an officer and gentleman, had been prepared and was very numerously signed, but the Shenandoah left before it could be presented. As for the ship, the men worked double tides night and day to get her clear; and on Saturday morning at daybreak she tripped anchor, and steamed through the Heads at noon, eventually taking a southern course. It is not denied that during Friday night a number of men—ascertained to be not more than 27 or 30—found their way on board the Shenandoah, and did not return on shore again.

The Shenandoah was last seen off Cape Schanck, and was believed to be waiting off the coast to intercept American ships, several of which, from New-York and Boston, were then due.

The Argus gives the following account of the cruise of the Shenandoah, from the time of her departure from Madeira:

"Her plan was, when she crossed a vessel, to show English or French colors and fire a gun, after which, if the other proved to be Yankee, she was taken and destroyed, and her captain and crew made prisoners. The following is a correct list of the vessels captured and destroyed by the Shenandoah:

Alina, bark, STAPLES, master, from Akyab to Buenos Ayres; cargo of railway iron. Scuttled Oct. 29, lat. 16° 47' N., lon. 16° 43' W.

Charter Oak, schooner, GILLMAN, master, from Boston for San Francisco; assorted cargo. Burned Nov. 5, lat. 7° 38' N., lon. 27° 49' W.

D. Godfrey, bark, HALLETT, master, from Boston to Valparaiso; assorted cargo. Burnt Nov. 7, lat. 6° 23' N., lon. 27° 6' W.

Susan, brig, HANSEN, master, from New-York to River Platte. Scuttled Nov. 10, lat. 4° 20' N, lon. 26° 39' W.

Adelaide, bark, of Baltimore, to River Platte; neutral cargo. Ship bonded for $23,000.

Lizzie M. Stacey, schooner, New-York to Sandwich Islands; assorted cargo. Burnt Nov. 13, lat 1° 40' N., lon. 28° 24' W.

Delphine, bark, from London for Akyab. Burnt, Dec. 29, lat. 29° 10' S., lon. 69° E."

The larger portion of the sailors taken prisoners volunteered to join the Shenandoah, and were accepted; the remainder, all but a few, were transhipped to other vessels met with on the high seas. The remnant were eight men, besides Capt. NICHOLLS, of the Delphine, and his wife and stewardess, who were brought hither. Unassisted, but unimpeded, they made their way out of the Shenandoah very shortly after the vessel's arrival in Hobson's Bay, and before the permission to land them, for which application was made to the Government, could be afforded.

THE WAR IN NEW-ZEALAND.

FRESH OUTBREAK OF THE REBELLION.

From the Melbourne Argus, Feb. 23.

The month has been fruitful in events of grave importance. The leading incidents are the surrender of Wiremu Tamihana, the Maori king-maker, and the blazing out of active hostilities on the western coast. The great native meeting at Hangatike, at which THOMPSON had intimated that Gov. GREY'S peace proposals would be considered, was duly held. It was attended by more than 1,000 Maoris, and both THOMPSON and REWI, the leading Ngatimanipoto chief, by whom the war was originally fomented, were present. THOMPSON spoke for peace, while REWI declared for war to the knife, and the latter is understood to have carried the tribes with him. He is reported to have left for the scene of operations at Wanganui, at the head of the fighting men of his own and the dispossessed Waikato tribes. The next heard of THOMPSON was that he had communicated with Brig.-Gen. CAREY, who commands in the Waikato, offering to surrender to any officers who might be deputed to receive him. The Telegraph briefly informs us that Capt. BLEWITT, of the Sixtieth, and Capt. BAKER, of the Eighteenth, proceeded on this mission, and have returned to headquarters, accompanied by THOMPSON. This redoubtable chieftain, it will be borne in mind, is the founder of the King movement. He it was who conceived the idea of uniting the tribes under a monarch, that they might act together to resist the advances of the white man; and he has carried out the scheme with equal zeal and ability. It has long been known, however, that he is convinced of the failure of the movement, for a failure it is, as shown by the facts that the war was entered upon the King's wishes and commands, and that of late the monarch has sunk into a nonentity. How far THOMPSON is acting in concert with the tribes which once acknowledged his influence, we have yet to learn. The scene of action is now shifted from the Waikato to the western coast. A distinguishing feature in the war policy of the Weld Ministry is the construction of roads through the disturbed districts, along the west coast to Wellington and the adjacent settlements. This is the very thing the natives have always forbidden Europeans to do, and the local rebels, with their Waikato allies, are now erecting pahs to stop the progress of the troops, of whom there are upwards of 3,000 in the district, under the command of Brig.-Gen. WADDY. In the meantime, the loyal natives and the out-settlers about Wanganui are suffering severely. In one instance, a Chief named RIO, together with many men, women and children, were surprised and brutally murdered, on account of their refusal to join the rebel cause. In another, Mr. J. D. HEWETT, a member of the Provisional Council, was shot in his own house, and subsequently his head was cut off. A severe action has already taken place. The natives had erected a pah on the Waitotary block, recently purchased by the government, but the sale of which the rebels dispute. Gen. CAMERON ordered Brigadier WADDY to form an advanced camp close to this place. On the 24th a skirmish took place, in which we have to regret the loss of Lieut. JOHNSTON, Deputy Assistant Adjutant-General Fortieth Regiment, an officer who has served with distinction, and whose death will be sincerely regretted. Three men were killed and seven severely wounded. Next day the Maoris attacked the camp in force. They opened fire upon an outlying picket of the Fiftieth, drove it in with severe loss, and, while the fighting was proceeding here, they burst in on the other side of the camp in such force and with such fury as to drive the troops before them in a hand-to-hand fight, in which they used their long-handled tomahawks with deadly effect. The British soldiers were soon rallied by their officers, a detachment of mounted artillery charged the natives in the rear, and, without having actually penetrated the camp, the Maoris were driven back to the bush. Our loss was 17 killed and 33 wounded, the list of the latter including Lieut. WILSON and Ensign GRANT, of the Fiftieth. Twenty-three Maori bodies were recovered, and the total loss of the enemy is estimated at sixty or seventy killed. Three hundred men of the Eighteenth Regiment and five hundred men of the Thirtieth were engaged, and the Maoris are believed to have been 600 strong. It is said that 2,000 fighting men are in arms at Wanganui—as many as took the field last year in the Waikato. The country is most difficult to operate in, for there is no river to facilitate transport, and where the land is not covered with an impenetrable forest it is overgrown with the tall native flax plant, which affords a dense cover. The Wanganui natives have abandoned themselves to the delusions of the mad prophet who has been recently preaching a crusade against the Europeans, ordered, as he says, by the Angel Gabriel. Our troops have, therefore, to encounter fanatics as well as savages. The adherents of the Pai Mairre superstition, as it is termed, were promised invulnerability, and this, it is said, induced them to make the bold and open attack on the Nukumaru camp. It is hoped that they are now undeceived.

SOCIAL REFORM.—Rev. C. L. BRACE, of this city, leaves for London, to-day, in the steamship City of Baltimore, to attend an international convention of reformatories, and to examine the institutions of charity and methods of reform of Great Britain, and all their movements affecting the condition of the lower class. Mr. BRACE'S long and very successful labors in this city in connection with the "Children's Aid Society," are familiar to the public, here and elsewhere. They entitle him to a rank among the foremost practical social reformers of the day. Our great cities, and especially the City of New-York, have now come to furnish a very extensive field for those who would labor for the elevation of the degraded class; and the intelligent inquiries of Mr. BRACE as to the ways and means of reform adopted in the great cities of Europe, will, undoubtedly, prove of value here in the future.

ACCIDENTAL DROWNING.—At about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, JAMES MCCAFFERY, a lad of ten years, fell from the Ninth-street pier, where he was playing, and was drowned in the East River. The body was recovered and taken to the dwelling of his parents, at No. 330 East Ninth-street.

The Sanitary Commission.

The following correspondence explains itself:

To Rev. Henry W. Bellows, President of the United States Sanitary Commission, New-York Agency, No. 823 Broadway:

DEAR SIR: For the purpose of answering the great number of inquiries made daily at our office, as to the modus operandi of obtaining Petroleum, we have thought it worth while to cause to be constructed a full-sized working model of an oil well, with engine, derrick, tank, drills, and indeed all the accompaniments complete, (a counterpart of which was contributed by our office to the national celebration, March 6,) and now on exhibition at No. 518 West Twenty-second-street, near Tenth-avenue, between the hours of 1 and 4 P. M. The Broadway and Twenty-third-street stages and the Tenth-avenue cars pass within a block, and are a pleasant substitute for a tedious journey of one thousand miles to and from the oil country. To the majority of men the subject is of sufficient interest to render a visit with their families to the "Oil Well" profitable. We have issued tickets of admission at twenty-five cents each, obtainable at our office, and beg your acceptance of the proceeds for the benefit of the Sanitary Commission, an association that, by its noble care of our sick and suffering soldiers, has earned the gratitude of every Union man. Sincerely congratulating you upon our recent glorious victories, we remain, Sir, very respectfully, WED. W. CLARKE & CO.

No. 10 Pine-st., New-York.

NEW-YORK, April 8, 1865.

REPLY OF DR. BELLOWS.

UNITED STATES SANITARY COMMISSION,
NEW-YORK AGENCY, NO. 823 BROADWAY,
NEW-YORK, April 12, 1865.

Wed. W. Clarke & Co.:

GENTLEMEN: I accept very gratefully, in behalf of the United States Sanitary Commission, your humane and patriotic offer to turn over to our treasury the proceeds of the exhibition of your model of an oil well and all its accompaniments complete.

We have "struck ile" in a good many places without "boring" the public over much. The domain from which our oil has flowed, the national sympathy and gratitude, has not proved a very rocky soil, and our machinery has been comparatively cheap and simple. Yet the wells have thrown, if not "a hundred feet in height and sixteen hundred barrels daily," as high as the wounds and sorrows of our stricken soldiers, and sometimes at the rate of sixteen hundred boxes, (a much more astonishing feat,) per month. They threw in one week tons of stores into Fredericksburgh, seventy thousand dollars of stores into Gettysburgh in four weeks, and have thus far furnished the army and navy with about ten millions of dollars worth of extra comfort. They are throwing this minute into Richmond, City Point, Newbern, Wilmington, Goldsboro, the Shenandoah, Nashville, Knoxville, New-Orleans, and fifty other stations, whatever the knowledge and humanity of our medical corps ask from us, and there is no immediate prospect that the "oil" will give out.

We have not recently found it necessary to "bull" our stock or force it upon the market. Sober purchasers seem to understand its value, and invest without noise.

Meanwhile we rejoice that petroleum wishes to sanctify itself by pouring some percentage of its flow into the wounds of our noble army of martyrs. It has made fortunes, lighted cottages and cities, cooked dinners and run steamships, lubricated mills and trains, contended with mining stocks, cotton and railroad shares in city roads, for the mastery on the Exchange. It now offers itself as a medicine for army wounds and hospital gangrene. We shall be glad to try it. May your oil well go into immediate and most popular operation. If all who have invested in oil stocks and expect to leave fortunes to their children will only go and take their offspring just to see how those fortunes are made, I cannot doubt that your receipts and ours will be sufficient to reward your utmost expectations, and so meet our largest requirements.

With grateful respect, I remain, gentlemen, yours truly, HENRY W. BELLOWS, President.

The Death of Valentine Mott, M. D., LL.D.

At a special meeting of the New-York Academy of Medicine, held on Friday evening, April 28, for the purpose of taking action concerning the death of its late President, Dr. VALENTINE MOTT, the following committee was appointed, viz.: Drs. Post, Delafield, Griscom, Buck, Flint, Isaac Wood and J. W. Draper, who reported the following resolutions, which were seconded by Dr. Stevens, and after remarks by Drs. Delafield, Stevens, J. R. Wood, Hamilton, J. M. Smith, Isaac Wood, Griscom, F. T. Elliott and Hewitt, were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That this Academy, in assembling to do honor to the memory of Dr. VALENTINE MOTT, who has just passed away in a ripe old age, recognize the fact that since its first organization, no member has been taken from among them who has filled a larger space in public estimation, as a physician and surgeon, than their deceased associate and late honored President.

Resolved, That our common country has reason to cherish the memory of Dr. MOTT, not only as the greatest surgeon ever produced in America, but as one who has taken rank with the first of this century in any part of the world; as one whose reputation was, indeed, world-wide, and whose name is known and revered wherever our profession is found.

Resolved, That this Academy are deeply sensible of the debt of gratitude our profession owes to our late associate, from the legacy he has left us, of great improvements in surgical science and art, improvements by which we are now enabled to save many valuable lives, which, without them, must have been lost, and which, in all future time, will be recognized as among the greatest achievements performed by any of its members.

Resolved, That, as it is not possible in this manner to testify our sense of the high character of Dr. MOTT as a citizen as well as a surgeon, we will appoint one of our members to pronounce a eulogy on the deceased, and make a more fitting and enduring memorial of his character and virtues, and that at the meeting of the Academy held for the purpose, citizens generally be invited to attend.

Resolved, That we tender to the family of the deceased our warmest sympathies for the bereavement they have suffered, but hope and trust that, conscious as they must be, that although the head of their family has been taken from them, he has filled up the full measure of a useful and well spent life, they have all the consolation possible in their affliction.

Resolved, That we will attend his funeral in a body, and that we invite the surgeons of the army and navy and the members of our profession generally in this city and its vicinity, to unite with us in paying this last tribute of respect to the memory of our lamented colleague.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be communicated to the family of the deceased, and that they be published in the daily papers.

(Signed) JAMES ANDERSON, M. D., President.
W. M. CHAMBERLAIN, Secretary.

N. B.—The Academy of Medicine, the surgeons of the army and navy, and the profession generally, will meet for the purpose of attending the funeral at Dr. CROSBY'S Church, Fourth-avenue, corner of Twenty-second-street, at 1 o'clock precisely.

We are glad to learn that the subscriptions for the volume on the death of President LINCOLN are coming in so rapidly. This is as it should be; every family in the country should have a copy of this book to hand down to their children. It will be brought out in fine style by the publishers, Messrs. TILTON & Co., No. 161 Washington-street, where subscription books may be found.—Boston Advertiser.

THE OFFENCE IS RANK.

We hold it inexcusable in any person, male or female, when they subject us to an annoyance which a very little trouble on their part would obviate. Especially is this the case where the unfortunate possessor of a bad breath will persist in button-holding and intruding his views upon us, to our manifest mental and physical discomfort. If these good people would use the Sozodont, it would not only render them acceptable acquaintances, but would at once greatly improve their teeth and breath.

"OUT OF SORTS" expresses the feelings of many that cannot be otherwise described. Languor, weakness, enervation, listlessness, sleepiness, melancholy, want of appetite, &c., compose a class of ailments greater than all others combined. It is exactly for these indescribable complaints that PLANTATION BITTERS are prepared. It is for the relief of these same complaints they have become so famous. Hence it is that they are so extensively used by clergymen, merchants, ladies, and persons of sedentary habits. They are as pleasant to the taste as they are beneficial to the stomach. The extent of their sale is almost incredible.

A BRICK IN A HAT—STORE.—Some miscreant, on Thursday morning last, destroyed the costly plate glass window of KNOX'S hat store, No. 212 Broadway, by throwing a brick through it. Whether it was the object of the perpetrator of this outrageous act to enable the enterprising hatter to sell a hat with a brick already provided, is a serious question to its puzzled victim. Those who want to see the "brick" and at the same time procure an elegant hat of the latest style, must call upon KNOX.

PATENT DRILLING MACHINE
PILE DRIVER
AND HYDRAULIC SAND PUMP.

PRACTICAL TESTS having fully demonstrated the superiority of this machine over all others for the purpose of sinking Oil Wells, the undersigned is now prepared to receive orders for the same.

This machinery comprises everything requisite for the boring of oil wells, excepting the STEAM ENGINE AND CAST-IRON DRIVING-PIPE, (but will be furnished, if desired, at a reasonable price,) and dispenses with the use of the derrick-rope, bull-wheel and other cumbrous and expensive fixtures now in use, and is so arranged, being constructed on wheels and portable, that it can be easily removed for the purpose of sinking wells in different localities.

THE DETRITUS is removed from the well by our Patent Hydraulic process, and does not require the removal of the drill from the boring. This process not only removes all the detritus in from 5 to 10 minutes, but likewise effectually clears out and opens all the small oil veins that are so often entirely closed up by the old process of sand pumping.

WITH THIS MACHINE and a practical engineer, a well can be sunk from 400 to 600 feet, within a period of from 15 to 30 days after the soil-pipe has been driven.

Arrangements are being made for the construction and delivery of these machines at New-York, Norwich, Newburgh, N. Y., and Pittsburgh, Penn.
